News and Hope, at Last
Second Lindbergh Statement
A Week of Fear
Power of Publicity

—By Arthur Brisbane—

A SEVERE storm of wind, rain and snow swept the Hopewell countryside all Sunday, with clouds black and lowery, trees shaking in the violent wind. But, within the Lindbergh home, relief and real hope brought happiness for the first time. There was definite news, at last.

What the message was that brought hope, or how it was delivered, has not been made known, but a second public statement, signed by Col. Lindbergh and his wife, made it clear that a message has been received. That message, according to those close to police authorities, assures the parents that their child is safe, and well, and they may hope for its return within 48 hours.

The statement issued by Col. Lindbergh informs the abductors of their child that if they are not willing to deal directly with the child's parents, they, the Lindberghs, will deal through intermediaries, acceptable to the kidnapers.

The announcement published and signed by Col. Lindbergh and his wife reads:

"If the kidnapers of our child are unwilling to deal directly we fully authorize 'Salvy' Spitale and Irving Bitz to act as our go-betweens.

"We will also follow any other method suggested by the kidnapers that we can be sure will bring the return of our child."

The men mentioned, Spitale and Bitz, are well known to police and newspapers in New York, because of their influence with the underworld, and wide acquaintance among its members. Spitale's first name is Salvatore, "Salvy" is his nickname.

The selection by name of these two men as acceptable "go-betweens" by the Lindberghs, who presumably had never heard of them until now, indicates that the kidnapers have mapped out a definite plan for the child's return, with payment of the ransom.

The sudden announcement, and definite names, give every reason to hope that the little boy's return will not be long delayed, and that alone interests the public. News of the child's safe return will cause rejoicing in every home in America.

Spitale and Bitz, in no way connected with the abduction, needless to say, will have the public's thanks for their help, no matter how the child's restitution may have been accomplished.

There is no doubt that wide publicity, however disagreeable in itself, has made the kidnapers anxious to be rid of the child, and rid of an undertaking, of which they under-estimated the danger. It is certain also that the first reassuring announcement by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, three days after the kidnaping, promising that no steps would be taken, by them, against the kidnapers, if the child were safely returned, had an excellent effect, relieving the kidnapers of panic, that might have proved disastrous.

The power of publicity, well used, was illustrated in a previous case, when a little girl, Marion Clark, was stolen from Central Park, in New York, in 1889. The New York Evening Journal offered a cash reward, not for the kidnapers, but for anyone sending information leading to the child's recovery. Pictures of the child were posted up outside postoffices and police stations for many miles around.

Marion Clark was identified, in the arms of the kidnaper, by a passer who had seen the pictures. The child was returned safe, the reward paid, the kidnapers caught and punished.

In this case, there is no thought of punishment in the public mind, only a passionately intense desire for the child's safety.

And the kidnapers may be absolutely sure that no step of any kind will be taken against them, by the parents.

There is good in human nature, and deep sympathy. For an entire week, less one day, this nation has thought of nothing but the sorrow of one mother, and the safety of her little boy.

There has been no other topic of conversation, no other inquiry made of newspaper offices and other sources of information except "IS THERE ANY NEWS OF THE LINDBERGH CHILD?"

The tension is at last relieved and hope has come. May disappointment not follow it.

Those that took the child know, now, that they can act with absolute safety to themselves, receiving the ransom money through intermediaries selected by themselves, with no danger of betrayal.

It is to be hoped that an end has come to such anxiety as has not been known in this country since the declaration of war.

DOCTOR GOES WILD; SHOOTS UP MALDEN

Medico Locks Self in His Office and Fires Volley Into the Busy Streets

A volley of pistol shots fired against the side of the Malden Electric Co. building on Pleasant st., Malden, today, revealed that Dr. Earle F. Prior, 35, prominent physician, was barricaded in his office across the street, battling an imaginary foe..

When police reserves finally invaded the office, they found him with a rifle in his hands, a pistol at his hip, and five revolvers, two more rifles and a shotgun beside him. He also had black powder and considerable ammunition.

GIRLS IN PERIL

He was taken to the police station and held for examination by alienists.

Dr. Prior's office is on the second floor of the Kaulback Building, 156 Pleasant st. The building opposite is the largest structure in the city.

More than 200 workers, mostly girls, escaped injury as the bullets from the doctor's rifle spattered against the side of the building, luckily hitting no windows.

Panic in both buildings and on the street followed and police were bombarded with telephone calls.

The first two officers to reach the scene, Sergt. William F. Cronin and Special Officer William J. McDermott, found the door to Dr. Prior's office apartment barred, and they sent for reserves.

OFFICE BARRICADED

"I've been on guard here all night," the doctor shouted to them through the barricaded door. "They're trying to get me.

"If you fellows want me, you'll have to break down the door and take your chances."

After a conference Sergt. Cronin cried out that he was bringing ammunition, and after some parleying, Dr. Prior opened the door and admitted the officers.

Beside him on a chair and a table he had his reserve supply of guns. He was in blue shirt and overalls and the black powder was in his overalls pocket.

IN MALDEN SIX YEARS.

Dr. Prior went to Malden about six years ago upon the death of his uncle, Dr. C. E. Prior and he was known throughout the city and very popular. He was formerly city physician.

He obtained a divorce two years ago and custody of a child, Betty, now seven years old.

TRIES SUICIDE ON KIDNAP JEST

Mentally upset by overstudy, and claiming he had been accused of stealing the Lindbergh baby, Frederick Ingalls, 26, a Harvard Divinity School student, attempted suicide today by slashing his throat in the Newell boathouse on Charles river.

Inflicting only a superficial wound, he made a second attempt, but was relieved of a razor blade and rushed to the Cambridge Hospital where his condition was found to be not serious. Later Ingalls, who lives in Brattle st., Cambridge, was sent to the McLean Hospital in Waverley.

According to hospital officials Ingalls had been receiving treatment from a physician for depression for two weeks.

Today, he told the doctors, he could not stand the accusation of having been the kidnaper of the Lindberg baby, made by one of his friends, although apparently in jest.

Ingalls said he walked to the Charles river, and, crossing to the Brighton side, went to the vicinity of the Newell boat house, where he cut his throat with a razor. He then went inside and tried again, but was overpowered by Frank Barker and other Harvard students, who held him until the arrival of Metropolitan police.

Physicians said Ingalls told them he had been over-studying, which they believed was responsible for his suicide attempt.

Safe Looted of $907 Near Police Station

They entered the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., office through a skylight and tore open the safe in "can-opener" style.

'BRING HIM IN, ANY PRICE,' MESSAGE

By DAVID P. SENTNER

New York, March 7 (INS)—Somewhere within the borders of the uncharted kingdom of gangdom, "Salvy" Spitale and Irving Bitz, two "regular guys" in the underworld, today were sowing the seeds which may bring back home the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Officially appointed by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh "goodwill" ambassadors to conduct negotiations with the abductors, the two racketeers were trying to do what the combined forces of the law had failed to do.

"NO QUESTIONS ASKED"

A blank wall of stony silence has confronted the nation's best detectives since Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was plucked into the cold night from his snug nursery crib last Tuesday.

This was the message being relayed along the grapevine of the underworld by Spitale and his "right arm," Irving Bitz.

The intimation was broadcast through the shadow land of racketeers that if any of the boys had "the kid" and didn't come across—it would be just too bad.

Since the two ministers of mercy extraordinary were designated by the Lindberghs, they have been missing from their homes and usual haunts.

SPITALE ON SECRET MISSION.

Spitale was reported to have been out on a mysterious mission most of the night and after a brief cat-nap to have left for another unannounced destination.

Bitz simply has disappeared. He is reported to be working in another direction, as prearranged with his boss.

Police have declared both in New Jersey and New York that they are leaving the two alone.

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (AP)—Capt. J. J. Lamb of the State police announced today that no demand for ransom has ever been made for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, and that neither the Lindberghs nor the police have ever had any communication from the kidnapers.

This statement was in direct contradiction of information given out by investigating forces at the Lindbergh estate last week that a note had been pinned to the nursery window sill demanding ransom and threatening harm to the baby if the text of the note was made publci.

It was reported this note demanded $50,000 for the baby's return, but this never was officially confirmed.

Capt. Lamb made his announcement today at the morning press conference, at which he replied to a long list of prepared questions.

CAN'T PROMISE IMMUNITY

An ominous note was sounded in the attempted negotiations with the kidnapers today—a day marked by an entire absence of clues—when Governor A. Harry Moore told newspaper men that he was powerless to promise immunity to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, even if the request to do so came from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself.

This is in direct contradiction of all the pleas of the Lindberghs that they would pledge themselves to pay any amount demanded for the safe return of their child, plus the pledge that nothing would happen to the kidnapers in the way of punishment.

MANY CALLS, NO CLUES

The mails added hundreds more.

Rumors, fantastic and bizarre, ran riot.

Yet all available trustworthy information nad all clues, tips and theories boiled down to the facts:

1—The 20-month-old heir of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh has not been found.

2—There is nothing to indicate that authorities have any knowledge of his whereabouts.

3—And, despite various reports, there is no definite information that the kidnapers ever have communicated with the Lindberghs since they stole "the most famous baby in the world" from his crib last Tuesday night.

Complete information on the progress of the hunt for the child was becoming more difficult to obtain because of an apparent lack of full details on the part of State police in whose charge the hunt is presumed to be.

MANY PUZZLING QUESTIONS

In accordance with procedure insisted on by police, reporters today had to submit their questions in advance and were not allowed to ask for more definite answers than the police chose to give. For that reason several of today's answers failed entirely to clear up matters which are still a mystery.

Typical of this was the answer as to Betty Gow's movements between the time she put the baby to bed at 7:30 p. m. and the time the kidnaping was discovered, 10 o'clock.

The police gave answers to all questions, but in many instances the answers didn't answer anything.

Has ransom been demanded for the Lindbergh baby?

Capt. J. J. Lamb of the state police said definitely today that no such demand had ever been made.

But last week a civilian friend of Col. Lindbergh, closer to him than any police official, said just as definitely that a ransom note had been left by the kidnaper.

Who is right, and what is the purpose of the one who has given misleading information?

Did the civilian informant, who would not let his name

be used, think that by erroneously announcing a ransom demand had been made he could hurry the kidnaper into making his demands known lest some impostor reap the reward of his crime?

Was Capt. Lamb following the common police procedure of using the press to mislead the criminal? Did he think that by saying no ransom note had been received he could make the kidnaper believe the first note (if there was one) had blown away and send another which might simplify the police hunt?

This matter of the ransom note is but one phase of the case concerning which divergent reports have been made by police and private investigators. The police situation is complicated by the fact that the investigation at the Lindbergh estate is being participated in not only by the state constabulary but also by detectives from Newark and Jersey City.

In several instances information obtained from police of one of these cities has not jibed with statements by police of the other city or by the state police.

At today's press conference Capt. Lamb was asked when it would be possible to secure an interview with Col. Lindbergh to clear up numerous discrepancies.

THE 21 QUESTIONS.

Q.—Will the police say officially whether or not there was a demand for ransom in the note left by the kndnapers?

A.—The family and police both deny there was a note left demanding ransom.

Q.—Will the police reveal the contents of the note?

Q.—How much ransom was demanded?

A.—Same answer as number one.

Q.—Did any note instruct Col. Lindbergh to announce Spitale and Bitz as intermediaries four days after the kidnaping?

A.—No.

Q.—What token, if any, did the kidnapers leave to identify their later communications to Col. Lindbergh from fake messages?

A.—None.

Q.—Have the police or Col. Lindbergh received any messages they believe are from the kidnapers.

A.—No.

Q.—Do the state police or Col. Lindbergh believe the baby is dead or alive?

A.—We believe the baby is alive.

G.—Was Johansen Junge (husband of a seamstress in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother) released after being questioned in Newark last night?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was the milk bottle found in Johnson's car the property of the company which furnished milk for the Lindbergh baby? (Henry Johnson, friend of Junge and suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, was still being questioned in Newark today.)

A.—I can't tell you anything about the milk bottle as investigators have not reported as yet.

Q.—Will Johnson be released under bond or will he be detained further?

A.—That depends on the outcome of his questioning.

Q.—Has the report on the questioning of Johnson been received by the state police at the Lindbergh home?

A.—No, not as yet.

Q.—What are the orders to the state police if the kidnapers, after negotiating satisfactorily with Col. Lindbergh, attempt to bring the baby to the Lindbergh home?

Q.—Are there any new clues on the ladder?

A.—None.

Q.—If the Lindbergh baby was ill why did Betty Gow leave it from 7:30 to 10 p. m.?

A.—The baby was not very ill. It had a slight cold.

Q.—When will Col. Lindbergh, Capt. Lamb, or someone in authority grant a personal interview to clear many discrepancies in the case?

Q.—Did Col. Breckinridge (attorney and friend of Lindbergh) see Spitale last night?

A.—Col. Breckinridge did not leave the house last night.

Q.—Has Col. Lindbergh asked the state police not to interfere with the negotiations and the safe return of the baby to the house? Has anyone made this request?

A.—(A) Col. Lindbergh has made no such request. (B) No.

Q—What is the basis for the disagreement between the police and Col. Lindbergh as to the method of procedure in this case?

Q.—Was the time at which the baby was put to bed on the night of the kidnaping his regular hour for going to bed?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you tell the movements of Betty Gow (the nurse) from the time she put the baby to bed until the kidnaping was discovered?

A.—Her movements were the usual movements.

Q.—Is it true that police are working on the tip that Johnson, when arrested, was on his way to Saco, Maine, where a relative of his, Mrs. Howard Pinkham, has a baby farm?

A.—The investigators assigned to that angle of the case have not reported as yet.

Although no man in recent years has been the recipient of as much spontaneous publicity as Col. Lindbergh, he never has courted it, nor has he cared for it. Under the present circumstances he has followed a policy of leaving all dealings with the press to the state police except for the apeals for the return of his child which have been made over the joint signature of Mrs. Lindbergh and himself.

SPITALE MOVE PUZZLES.

The brief announcement Saturday, over the Lindbergh signatures, that "Salvy" Spitale and Irving Bitz had authority to act as go-betweens in negotiations for the baby's return, apparently was an action taken independent of the authorities, for the latter professed ignorance of the action.

Spitale and Bitz have been looked upon as gang allies in the past. They were named by Jack ("Legs") Diamond in a statement to a newspaperman (which was published posthumously) as the men who shot him down in the Monticello Hotel (New York) attack that nearly cost him his life.

Spitale was questioned late last year in connection with Diamond's murder, but was not held.

Newspapers today theorized on the significance of the Lindbergs' action in naming gangsters as go-betweens. Some of them saw in the announcement an indication that Col. Lindbergh had heard directly from the abductors and that the naming of Spitale and Bitz was the result of such communication.

No comment of any kind was forthcoming from the Lindbergh estate, where Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have secluded themselves from interviewers throughout the days of search.

A statement given by Spitale and Bitz to the New York Daily News today said:

"We were asked by a representative of Col. Lindbergh ot act for him in the hope that the kidnapers would get in touch with us. We had no ulterior motives in sacrificing ourselves—because sacrifice it is—to aid the Lindberghs. We hope for no personal profit whatsoever.

"Further, we have not been in communication with the kidnapers, nor have they been in communication with us.

"As the father of two children, I told the representative of the Lindbergh family that I was concerned with only one thing—to recover the child, alive and in good health. My only thought is that as a man of my word, my promise that I'll play ball with the kidnapers insured them of a square deal."

The naming of Spitale and Bitz did not close the door to any other method of communication the kidnapers might prefer. "We will follow any other method suggested by the kidnapers that we can be sure will bring the return of our child," the statement of the Lindberghs said.

How the Lindberghs happened to select Spitale and Bitz as go-betweens remained a mystery. The general belief here is that the Lindbrghs felt the kidnapers would be more willing to deal with someone they believed would have the gang viewpoint than with lawyers or the Lindbergh family itself.

Commissioner Mulrooney of the New York city police said he had no knowledge of the selection of Spitale and Bitz until it was published by the newspapers late Saturday night.

SPITALE BUSY

Spitale has been arrested once, according to police records, but has never been convicted of a crime. Bitz's record shows a felony conviction. The files of both men have been removed from the police records without explanation.

Spitale spent Sunday visiting numerous hangouts where outlaws are known to hang out, and in passing the word to his allies to be on the watch for any word of the kidnaping.

"If this was a professional job," he said, "I think I will be able to obtain the baby's release. If amateurs did it, I am not so sure. They might not be willing to trust me."

Henry (Red) Johnson, the sailor friend of Miss Betty Gow, nursemaid to the stolen baby, still was detained early today. He was arrested in Hartford, Ct., late last week when police found his automobile and a milk bottle in it. He has been questioned at great length since that time, both by Connecticut and New Jersey authorities. Today he was held by Newark police. There was no indication that he had made any statements involving either himself or Miss Gow in the kidnaping.

A statement by Johannsen Junge, husband of a seamstress employed at the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow (Mrs. Lindbergh's mother), in Englewood, tended to remove Johnson from suspicion as a participant in the kidnaping. Junge said he and Johnson went to the Morrow home last Tuesday night—the night of the kidnaping—about 9 o'clock and that Johnson telephoned Miss Gow from there. When she told him she could not see him that night, Johnson took Junge for a ride in his newly purchased automobile. They drove around Englewood, Junge said, until midnight.

The abduction occurred some time between 8:30 and 10 p. m.

MANY OFFER SERVICES

Spitale and Bitz are the only two go-betweens the Lindberghs have singled out by name. Scores of others, however, have offered their services and have promised to protect the interests of the kidnapers so long as the child is returned unharmed. Every church in America—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish—has been designated by spokesmen for each as ready and anxious to receive the baby into their care with no questions asked.

Dudley Field Malone, prominent international lawyer; Bernarr McFadden, publisher; Warden Laws of Sing Sing Prison, Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, Sr., of Detroit (grandmother of the baby), and many others have been designated as ready to serve as intermediaries. Pat Crowe, who was acquitted when tried for the Cudahy kidnaping in Kansas many years ago, was one of the first to proffer his services.

The general advice of those in authority, as well as of well-wishers, has been that the return of the baby is of such transcendent importance that any thought of arrest and convicion of the kidnapers is not now a matter of consideration. The Lindberghs themselves have followed this reasoning from the outset and have indicated their willingness to meet the kidnapers' terms, whatever they may be.

MAY NOT SEEK RANSOM

In the absence of definite word that any communication has been received from the kidnapers, some authorities today were considering the possibility that ransom was not the object of the kidnaping. The history of previous kidnapings has been that the abductor invariably communicated with the parents immediately. The absence of direct and reliable word from them within six days was seen by some as pointing to the possibility that the abduction was motivated solely by a desire to possess the baby and not to obtain ransom.

Such a theory, however, was predicated upon the absence of definite knowledge. It was realized that the kidnapers may have communicated with Col. Lindburgh and that both he and the state police have withheld that information in the interest of the baby's safety.

Lindbergh Spurns Gift of Dog

Station Master Frederick Leigh notified the Lindbergh home and was told it would not be accepted.

The sender, H. Schrade of West Palm Beach, Fla., was notified and asked that the dog be given to anyone who would give it a good home. An official of the Western Union Telegraph Co. accepted it.

SAW 'PLOTTERS' AT LINDY HOME

Camden, N. J., March 7 (INS)—Nine days before the Lindbergh baby was snatched from its crib, a man and a woman are believed to have photographed that side of the house where the nursery window is located.

This startling information, indicating the kidnaping was as carefully planned as it was skilfully executed, was given police today by Herbert Garwood, Palmyra, a tree salesman.

Garwood told police he visited the Lindbergh estate on Washington's birthday to sell shrubs. While talking with Ollie Wheatley, butler-chauffeur, a wife drove up in a small green coach of 1928 or 1929 model.

The woman was about 30 years old, the man five years her senior and weighing about 200 pounds. Garwood said he watched idly while they focused a camera on the Lindbergh home.

Later Garwood discovered the woman secreted in dense undergrowth near the home. He stopped and investigated, he said, and found she was photographing the side of the holse where the nursery was located. She made several "shots."

"Bluebeard" Powers' Death Edict Upheld

Charleston, W. Va., March 7—"Bluebeard" Harry F. Powers, under sentence to be hanged March 18 for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of Northboro, Mass., was denied a review of his case by the State Supreme Court today.

The court made no comment in refusing the appeal.

IF RANSOM IS MOTIVE, WHY NO WORD?

Doubt that ransom was the motive for the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby arose today.

The doubt exists because:

2—No demand for money has since been sent by them.

3—No attempt has been made by them to contact the Lindberghs, although the path has been cleared five days by virtual promise of immunity to prosecution and actual promise to meet a demand for money.

If ransom was the motive it may be that Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are being subjected to the cruel torture of suspense preliminary to a demand for a sum of money far beyond the wildest speculation.

Doubt that ransom was the motive is not necessarily an ominous one.

If the motive were revenge for some fancied wrong, apparently there is no intention of harming the baby. The baby could have been injured without being stolen.

If, on the other hand, it was taken by some crazed person who wanted the most publicized child in the country to bring up, it is probable the baby is being well cared for and will eventually be found.

GANG CHIEFS HUNT BABY

the New Jersey State police today declared that in case the kidnapers attempt to bring the baby home they will receive every assistance.

"Police will do everything they can to help the kidnapers deliver the child," said Capt. Lamb.

The "grapevine" had it that the Lindberghs had approached a number of the "big shots" among the racketters to represent them in possible negotiations with the baby-snatchers. All of them turned thumbs down on the proposition for fear of the publicity.

Then Spitale and Bitz were nominated and the "big shots" approved.

NOT SURE "PROS" DID IT

They approved because the team of Spitale and Bitz was a "right team," their records were good, both police and underworld trusted them, and they could stand the glare of publicity.

Also, the thing showed that racketeers had a heart and weren't so black as the anti-crime wave had pictured them.

However, the "big shots" weren't at all sure that the Lindbergh kidnaping was a professional job.

This and more—take it for what it is worth—went out over the "grapevine" quivering and vibrating with gossip, rumor and report. Even Gov. A. Harry Moore in Trenton, N. J., appeared to be rooting for the success of the kidnaping hunt being conducted by the two racketeer plenipotentiaries.

He was asked if he would withdraw the police from the Lindbergh estate if Col. Lindbergh requested it.

"I certainly would do it if he asked me," replied the Governor. "I would do anything at all Col. Lindbergh asked me to do. Our whole interest in the case is to get the baby back home safely. And anything we can do to further that end will be done."

"SALVY" TELLS HOPES

In his expensively furnished apartment in Central Park West, in the presence of the mother of his two children, "Salvy," designated by Colonel Lindbergh as the "go-between" to retrieve the baby from the kidnapers, admitted nothing, denied nothing relative to his reported meeting with the flier Saturday night.

"I'm not going to tell how I got into this," he said. "One thing I want to make plain: I've got nothing to do with it except just as a human being. I think Lindbergh rates the breaks. I figure this kid is America's baby. Believe me, I want him sent home.

"Are you in direct communication with the kidnapers? he was asked.

"No."

"Have you reason to suppose you will be?"

"I'm hoping for communications."

"By telephone?"

"Maybe."

"Do you know where the missing child is at this time?"

"No. If I did, I'd go get him right away."

"Do you expect to get the child back?"

"I hope to. It all depends on the breaks."

"What breaks?"

"Well, if the youngster is held by a mob or by individuals, it doesn't make any difference. So long as this hurrah keeps up, how can the abductors be expected to deal? I wish somebody had the power to suppress newspapers and silence radios for 24 hours."

"Do you believe the baby is in New York city?"

"What's the use of asking questions like that? It's just speculative. Do you suppose it would help matters for me to give out such information, if I had it? Of course, I haven't."

"Have you the $50,000 in your possession now to make a quick settlement if one is offered?"

"Listen, that'll all be taken care of. What I want is to be let alone so I can have a chance to look after anything that may turn up. Let's pipe down on this stuff. What we want is the kid. Ain't that right?"

"Have you any information at this time that leads you to suppose you will be in touch with the kidnapers today?"

"I told you I've got a telephone number. Lots of people know it. Maybe I might hear something. You can't tell. I'm going to help all I can. That's all I can say now."

"Do you believe the baby is going to be sent home safely?"

"What I believe makes no difference. I'd give more than you may suppose to get that kid back to his mother. With me it's almost a personal matter. I'm interested the way any man with a kid would be. Whatever I can do, I'm going to do, so there you are."

Spitale and Bitz, the two "right guys" slipped out of New York in "Salvy's long, black and powerful automobile, which was snaked swiftly through traffic by an adroit chauffeur known only as "Biscuits" and who shook off pursuers when they reached Staten Island.

New York Police Hunt New Suspects in Auto

New York, March 7 (INS)—A police alarm went out today for a "mystery automobile" suspected of having a connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case.

One radio police message ordered four police cars to rush to the New York end of the Manhattan bridge for the purpose of heading off a tan sedan bearing a New Jersey license.

A second general alarm was dispatched later for all policemen to be on the lookout for the sedan.

Youngest "Lifer" Is Given Prison Job

William Irving Brown, youngest of the 148 "lifers" confined in State prison, Charlestown, was put to work today by Deputy Warden Godendorf in the hosiery shop.

Brown, who recently observed his 18th birthday, was found guilty of second-degree murder in the slaying of his step-father, Richard B. Wilson in Newton.

NO PROOF BABY IS ALIVE, SAYS GOV. MOORE

Trenton, N. J., March 7 (AP)—Gov. A. Harry Moore told newspaper men today he was powerless to grant immunity to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, but that he would be willing to withdraw the police if Col. Charles A. Lindbergh should request.

The Governor received reporters at their request in the State House. The first question was whether he would promise immunity if Col. Lindbergh should ask it.

"I have no more authority than you to do that," Gov. Moore replied. "No one can give a pass to break the law. A law is a law. Only a grand jury, by refusing to indict, can grant immunity."

In response to questions the governor said he would be willing to withdraw the police of Lindbergh should make such a request and he further expressed the opinion that if the newspapers would "lay off" the authorities might "get somewhere."

NO PROOF BABY LIVES

"At first the publicity was wonderful," he said, "but now because of the many wild statements it is harmful. Personally I think if you all laid off for a couple of weeks we would get somewhere."

When it was suggested to him that the "wild statements" might be directly attributed to discrepancies in information given out by the police, the Governor said:

He was next asked whether there was any basis for the police belief that the baby was alive, expressed at Hopewell today by Police Capt. J. J. Lamb.

"We have no tangible evidence that the child is alive" he replied. "We are watching the case every minute and there are no new developments. We are co-operating with the Lindberghs all the time.

"My idea is to put every resource of state and nation in the case. The forces of the secret service are working throughout the country."

PUZZLED BY GANG DEAL.

Governor Moore said he knew nothing of the reasons for arrangements made by the Lindberghs to have Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz act a sunderworld go-betweens.

He said some "very good suggestions" had been made by crime experts of 10 States whom he called into conference last week.

"They have pledged themselves to co-operate to rush everything through," he said.

He concluded the interview with the statement that he had seen no ransom note and knew nothing of any note left by the kidnapers. As to conflicting police reports concerning the existence of such a note he said he would speak to H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of State police.

He said he believed Schwartzkopf would make an official statement about the matter provided there was no "police reason" to prevent him.

Man Found Who Sold Milk to Couple, Baby in Green Car

Norwalk, Ct., March 7 (AP)—Jimmy Bistany, owner of a restaurant on the Boston Post Road, between Stamford and Norwalk, reported to Norwalk police today that he had sold a bottle of milk at 11:30 p. m., Tuesday, to a man accompanied by a woman and baby.

Bistany told police the man, who was riding in a green coupe, answered newspaper descriptions of Henry ("Red") Johnson of Englewood, N. J., detained in Newark, N. J., for questioning in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

Bistany said his customer asked for hot milk and said it was for the baby. Mrs. Bistany asked the man if he wanted a little sugar in the milk. The customer went outside and returned with an affirmative answer.

ORPHANS PRAY FOR BABY AS GANGS HUNT

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 7—While rumors flew that Salvy Spitale, Lindbergh "go-between," was holding shadowy rendezvous with an agent for the kidnapers, police pounced on his limousine as it left a ferry on Staten Island. It was a mistake, however, and the car, containing only a sputtering chauffeur, was released.

ORPHANS IN PRAYER.

Hopewell, March 7—Five hundred motherless tots at St. Michael's Orphanage are praying that the kidnapers will leave the child at that institution. Each day they hurry to the door, but there has been no child on the step.

"NEGLECT NO CLUES"

New York, March 7—"Somebody knows all about the crime," said Commissioner Edward Mulroony to 800 policemen. "When more than two people are in on a secret it is not a secret. Neglect no clues."

GUARD LINDY'S MA

ANNE STILL BRAVE

BABY IN PLANE

Trenton, N. J., March 7—A young woman, who said she was Annette Corbett of Philadelphia, told police the kidnapers flew over the Lindbergh estate Saturday to drop the child in a parachute, but lost their nerve.

"You cops are always butting in" she said when taken from a bus. Previously she had insisted she would tell no one but Col. Lindbergh.

LINDY FEEDS POLICE

Hopewell, March 7—Pausing a few moments in his anxious task of helping the investigators, Col. Lindbergh joined Mrs. Lindbergh in the pantry last night. He made sandwiches and she opened a bottle of milk.

GARAGE A STATION

Hopewell, March 7—The Lindbergh garage is now a state police sub-station. There are nine telephones, three of them in booths, and two teletype machines. Troopers with ear phones sit at a long table.

BAR "HOT DOGS"

Hopewell, March 7—Troopers rushed to meet a moving van teartearing up the road to the Lindbergh estate. Two men in it said they brought lumber to build a "hot dog" stand. "Beat it, buddies," said the troopers.

PLAN CELEBRATION

Atlanta, March 7—If the Lindbergh baby is found it will be like Fourth of July here. Mayor James L. Key asked every one to be ready to sound sirens, blow whistles and ring bells.

RUNAWAY AIDS HUNT

New York, March 7—David Adams, 11, apparently decided to do something about this kidnaping. He's missing and his father believes he may have gone to Hopewell to help out.

NOTED SLEUTH BUSY

New York, March 7—John J. Fogarty, a red-faced man with shrewd eyes, is on the job. He was one of New York's most famous city detectives and now he does private sleuthing. Col. Henry Breckinridge, close friend of Col. Lindbergh, hired him.

LAWES OFFERS AID

Ossining, N. Y., March 7—"All the inmates here resent the whole affair," said Warden Lewis Lawes of Sing Sing Prison as he offered to act as go-between in dealing with the Lindbergh kidnapers.

"MUST RETURN TO GOD"

New York, March 7—The one great ambition of many youths is to "go to the Big House and graduate with the degree of master criminal," said Gov. A. Harry Moore. "America must return to the God of our fathers" to solve crime problems, he believes.

GANGSTERS ON TRAIL

New York, March 7—Twenty Broadway racketeers, headed by Salvy Spitale, were reported to have started on an expedition to find the baby.

LINDY REFUSES DOG

Hopewell, March 7—A shepherd dog came by express as a gift to Col. Lindbergh, but he wouldn't accept it. So, with the consent of the donor, H. Schrade of West Palm Beach, Fla., it was given to an official of a telegraph company, who promised it a good home.

"BABY SAFE," SAYS CARD

Detroit, March 7—"Your baby is safe, but he is not using no medicine," said a card addressed to the Lindberghs and picked out of the mails. "He is eating pork chops, pork and beans, just what we eat. Just follow our directions sent and have 100,000 bucks ready."

Count Salm Turns $8 Into $8000 at Baccarat

Count Salm

Cannes, France, March 7—Count Ludovic Salm, former husband of Millicent Rogers, pyramided $8 to $8000, setting a new Casino record for winning on so small an investment.

The Count dined at the Casino with Dorothy Benjamin Caruso. He later ran $8 to $240 playing at chemin de fer. Go to the baccarat room, Count Salm then challenged Nicholas Zagraphos, head of a syndicate of Greek gamblers.

The Count played his $240 carefully, ending the game with $8000 to his credit. He announced he would furnish lavish entertainment to his friends

Mrs. Sanger

New Haven, March 7—Mrs. Margaret Sanger's permit to use the Junior High school for a lecture on birth control tomorrow evening was cancelled as the result of protests by the clergy.

Following the cancellation, the New Haven Board of Education, which is sponsoring the lecture, leased the College Theater for the occasion.

Chief of Police Philip Smith cancelled the permit on the grounds that the subject of Mrs. Sanger's address is a violation of the statutes of Connecticut.

NEW SEARCH FOR BABY IN BOSTON

Orders for the apprehension of another car in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping were broadcast by Boston and State police today as the result of an anonymous phone call to Supt. Michael H. Crowley.

The car, a green sedan with New York registration plates 9-V 6863, was said to contain two men and a baby and was reported seen near Uphams Corner, Dorchester.

Police also launched a search through hotels and lodging houses for two men and a woman as a result of the report by Clarence Lee of Gainsborough st., Back Bay, Pullman porter, regarding a conversation he had overheard on a train between Poughkeepsie and Albany.

Lee heard the trio in a drawing room talking about a baby. He told police they said something about returning a baby unharmed if they were not double-crossed.

CHURCH FOLK SEE CAPTURE

Attleboro, March 7 (INS)—Following a desperate attempt to escape police by breaking through a throng of church-goers, John Caprare, former convict, wanted by police of Providence and Worcester, and two alleged confederates, today were being held for arraignment and for authorities of other cities.

Companions of Caprare told police they were William Donofrio, 27, Hartford, Ct., and Abe Kaplan, 29, of New Britain, Ct.

The trio was placed under arrest at pistol point in a hotel as being suspected of a Providence holdup.

Caprare broke from a policeman en route to headquarters and dashed into a crowd of several hundred persons leaving St. John's Catholic Church. Five shots were fired into the air and a sixth narrowly missed Caprare as he dodged into an alley.

He was brought down with a flying tackle by a pursuer.

"Freezing" Urged to Balk War Profiteers

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A constitutional amendment to permit the freezing of prices at the outbreak of a war was recommended to Congress today by the war policies commission in its final report based on months of investigation into eliminating profits from such conflicts.

A resolution proposing the amendment was offered by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), a member of the commission. The report was forwarded to congress by President Hoover.

ELSIE ROBINSON LAUDS SPIRIT OF MOTHER

Mrs. Lindbergh Calmest Soul in Hopewell, Says the Noted Writer

By ELSIE ROBINSON

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (INS)—Here in an unknown village—on sour, grudging earth, beneath grim and stormy skies—there is today being preached one of the greatest sermons on civilization that the world has ever heard—a sermon without words, on self-control.

Temporarily, Hopewell is a bedlam. Ordinarily a huddle of houses, it seethes with people. Troopers, detectives, reporters, curious tourists by the thousands—a gabbling, pointing, shoving, jeering, hurrying mob. People wherever you turn—all gone a little mad.

NO QUIET IN HOPEWELL

And that madness is as tangible as the people themselves. You feel it, almost find yourself putting out your hands to ward it off. All the things that squirm and jostle and shriek for relief within our human hides are running amuck here today—fear and hate, vanity, curiosity, greed, silliness and stupidity. Even when massed faces are blank or silent you can feel the things that press behind.

There isn't a quiet inch in Hopewell. There's hardly a normal act. Everybody is letting himself go. Doing whatever pops into his head to do. Doing any sort of a crazy thing.

A WOMAN WHO IS CALM

But, two miles away, on the top of a hill—with its lights burning steady and white against the darkening sky—there is a house that is very still. And in it, a woman who is calm.

Quietly, steadily, Anne Lindbergh goes on with life. Her heart is breaking—her mind at times, must falter and fail, behind those wide fixed eyes, but it still has charge. She does things she has always done. She eats and sleeps—a little. A very little, but the normal routine is maintained. She walks with her husband and mother.

She does practical things.

Issues a simple, dignified appeal to the kidnapers. Publishes the baby's diet. Speaks quietly to those who greet her. Oversees the comfort of the men who guard the estate.

All through the day, Anne Lindbergh goes on, making carefully, deliberately the small, fine, controlled gestures of civilization.

Today, in the face of the most desperate and terrible agony which a human soul can suffer, Anne Lindbergh is controlling herself—and maintaining civilization against "the powers of darkness."

This is the greatest thing that I have ever seen. I, too, have had a son and lost him. I thought I lost him bravely—but I stand shamed before this girl. What was it Henley wrote—

"It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate—
I am the captain of my soul."

Fine words, but I've doubted them. I know now they are true. It is possible for human beings so to rise above all circumstances—and assert the soul's supremacy. Anne Lindbergh has.

Two exclusive photos of Henry "Red" Johnson, 25-year-old sailor sweetheart of Nursemaid Betty Gow. Johnson, arrested in Hartford, Ct., was subjected to lengthy questionings in regard to the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby and was then taken to Newark, N. J., where he is still being held. He claims an alibi and produced a letter to uphold it. One photo above shows him on the deck of a yacht, of which his brother Fred was master. The other view shows him with a girl friend of the family. Copyright, 1932, by Boston Evening American and International News Photos.

LITTLE FEET THAT WALKED INTO HEARTS OF WORLD

Two little feet, so small that both may nestle
In one caressing hand,—
Two tender feet upon the untried border
Of life's mysterious land.

Dimpled, and soft, and pink as peach-tree blossoms,
In April's fragrant days,
How can they walk among the briery tangles,
Edging the world's rough ways?

These rose-white feet, along the doubtful future,
Must bear a mother's load;
Alas! since Woman has the heavier burden,
And walks the harder road.

Love, for a while, will make the path before them,
All dainty, smooth, and fair—
Will cull away the brambles, letting only
The roses blossom there.

But when the mother's watchful eyes are shrouded
Away from sight of men,
Who shall direct them then?

Will they go stumbling blindly in the darkness
Of Sorrow's tearful shades?
Or find the upland slopes of Peace and Beauty,
Whose sunlight never fades.

Some feet there be which walk Life's track unwounded,
Which find but pleasant ways:
Some hearts there be to which this life is only
A round of happy days.

Ah! who may read the future? For our darling
We crave all blessings sweet,
And pray that He who feeds the crying ravens
Will guide the baby's feet.

FEAR CABBY IS INSANE CAPTIVE

Nashua, N. H., March 7 (AP)—Police today investigated information connecting the disappearance of a local taxicab driver with the escape of two insane inmates of the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford, Mass.

The driver, Alphee Landry, 25, answered a call to pick up two men at a street corner in Nashua Saturday and had not returned today. Meanwhile the police were notified that Francis Goslin, 48, and Henry Morse, 36, had escaped on Saturday from the Bedford hospital. They were described in the police report as mentally irresponsible persons. Later, police said, they received information identifying two men seen in Landry's cab as the escaped inmates.

MAYOR TOLD TO 'WATCH HOME'

Mayor Curley today received an anonymous letter stating that the kidnaped Lindbergh baby would be left at his home. It read:

"Mr. Curley — Watch your House for the first couple Days, Somebody is going to leave the Lindburgh baby their o. k."

It was signed with three marks resembling the figure one. It was written on an ordinary half-sheet of cheap white stationery and contained in an envelope marked Medford, March 6, 10 p. m., and addressed as follows:

"To Mayor Curley, City Hall, Boston, Rush."

Gangsters Fear, Respect Spitale, Says Lait

BEST CHOICE TO AID LINDBERGH IN BABY HUNT

By JACK LAIT

(Author "The Big House," "Put On the Spot," "Gangster Girl," "The Beast of the City," etc.)

New York, March 7—They had to do it. Organized society, dumbfounded and confounded, had to come to the underworld to interpose a power higher than the law when cities, counties, states—the government itself—were helpless in the Lindbergh baby outrage.

In Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz the wise criminologists who advised Col. Lindbergh to call on men who could do something picked perfectly. Bitz reflects Spitale, to whom he is a colleague; Spitale is the big shot, rich, keen, literate, courageous, intrenched in politics and feared and revered in gangdom.

Picture him!

WORD IS HIS BOND

Tall, lithe, tawny, with the springy step of a sprinter, handsome in a way that one might call Jack Dempsey handsome, a man still well under 40 who has fought with his hands and his brains through violence and all the labyrinths of America's involved system of rackets to where he commands credit in banks, authority over muscelers and gunmen, and the affection of many friends because he has never broken his word—his word of honor—the word of honor of a gangster!

He might have stepped out of a movie. In his luxuriant and costly apartment high above Central Park West in the 80's, overlooking the most fascinating vista of Central Park, he lives with his pretty, soft-spoken and diffident wife and his two children, a boy and a girl, who are being educated in a smart private school.

He receives you in saffron-hued robe of shimmering silk. He greets you with an honest smile. There are no "bodyguards" around, no secret panels, no sliding steel doors, none of that hokum.

DEVOTED TO CHILDREN.

On the wall of his drawing-room hangs a $30,000 tapestry with a Confucian design of intricate and legendary significance—an ancient Chinese masterpiece. Along one wall is a hospitable sideboard bearing cut-glass containers of glazed fruits and spiced nuts and confectionery. On another sideboard are decanters of the finest pre-war stimulants and dainty liqueurs, which he sweepingly offers you.

The furniture is Louis XIV and makes a connoisseur collector's mouth water. His collection of fine books is in keeping, and he reads them.

His ambition is to raise his children to be God-fearing and decent citizens, and to keep his wife happy. Salvy is out nights a great deal, but not roistering. The hot spots have not known him for many a moon.

AT LINDBERGH HOME

He has never been convicted of an offense and it is an axiom among the boys that if he makes a promise he not only will try to kep it—he will keep it, be that promise a favor or a pay-off.

Lindy's Courage in Facing Greatest Test of Life Is Praised by Mrs. Morrow

By DOROTHY DUCAS

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (INS)—Tribute to the resourcefulness and courage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the most trying situation the transatlantic flier ever has faced was paid him today by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow.

"I have never loved him more than now," she told friends. "He is marvelous to everyone—so full of ideas—and energy. It is a revelation to watch him."

The handsome widow of Senator Morrow, whose death last year cut short Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh's tour of the Orient, has been staying at the Lindbergh home here since last Wednesday morning, helping her daughter run the greatly enlarged household and comforting both young people in their trouble.

FEARS FOR ANNE.

Herself spartanlike under the shock of the loss of her only grandchild, Mrs. Morrow's constant fear has been that Anne, mother of the kidnaped baby, would break under the strain. Mrs. Lindbergh is expecting another baby in September.

But both the colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have proved a surprise to the level-headed, intelligent Englewood society woman. They have kept their wits about them, held on to their hopes of the baby's safe return.

And the colonel has persisted in keeping his hands on the reins; directing and participating in every phase of the nation-wide man hunt which has thus far failed to discover the whereabouts of the curly-haired Lindbergh baby.

LINDY IS DAUNTLESS

Nothing daunts him. Discouragements, futile pleas, bewildered reports from the four corners of the nation, hot leads that end in nothingness—he takes them all with the same thin-lipped stoicism that will not admit defeat. As each trail ends resultless, he picks up another.

Mrs. Morrow has always been fond of her famous son-in-law, but her devotion has deepened with his exhibition of character of a different sort than that needed for a transatlantic flight.

"The two young people are wonderful," she tells friends, simply. "They are holding up better than anyone dreamed possible."

Mrs. Morrow herself has had little sleep since the news came to her late last Tuesday night that little Charlie had been stolen from his crib. She has kept in touch by telephone with her own home in Englewood, now presided over by Miss Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister, but she never leaves her stricken daughter's side. Those who see her say she is quite as "wonderful" herself as the two whose courage she so highly commends.

FAMOUS KIDNAPING MYSTERIES ✤ By Win Brooks ✤ The Cudahy Case

(This is the fifth in a series of daily complete articles on notorious kidnaping cases, in which there has been a reawakening of interest resulting from the abduction of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.)

A man by the name of Pat Crowe has wired Col. Lindbergh offering his aid in tracing the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

It is altogether unlikely that his offer will be accepted. If it were, the entire Lindbergh and Morrow families, together with their household goods and possibly their domiciles, might find themselves abducted. Mr. Crowe is that type of individual; or was, at any rate.

Crowe successfully engineered what to my mind is the only kid kidnaping for ransom that is tinged with the slightest vestige of humor.

CROWE A SHOPMAN

In the brief agony that he caused Edward Cudahy, the packing king, and Mrs. Cudahy, parents of the boy he stole, there is, of course, no laugh, but the circumstances preceding and attending the actual act, and, especially, those following Crowe's collection of $25,000 ransom—the search for him, his arrest and trial—were ludicrous.

Before Crowe became a bad man—and he rather enjoys being referred to as a reformed desperado—he conducted a retail butcher shop in Omaha, Neb., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cudahy, their four daughters, and their son, Edward, Jr.

Cudahy, a millionaire even then, at the close of the 19th century, headed the packing industry and what was commonly called the Beef Trust, which was in growing public disfavor because of its manipulations of meat prices.

Cudahy's operations forced Crowe's little business to the wall and the latter was obliged to take a position as manager of one of Cudahy's wholesale meat markets.

HELPS HIMSELF

This was a costly move for the packer because Crowe began dipping into the till, helping himself to large amounts of ready cash. He did this quite brazenly and with equal gall he opened an account in one of the several banks in which Cudahy was a director, depositing almost daily more money than he was paid in a week as salary.

When Cudahy got around to investigating the reason why he was losing so much money at the wholesale house where an enormous business was being done, there was Crowe's bank account sticking up like a sore thumb placed at a figurative nose.

He did go to the dogs, however, enlarging his thieving activities to include armed robbery and finally he engineered two or three really big "jobs," one a Chicago diamond robbery, another a train holdup. He served a term in jail, came out to discuss underworld plans for the kidnaping of a famous man, wash his hands of them and embark upon a little kidnaping scheme of his own.

FINDS AN AIDE

He picked up an old partner in crime, Jim Callahan by name. Callahan had a pronounced weakness for hard liquor and why Crowe became associated with him is not clear unless it was a mutual regard for the bottle.

Young Cudahy was 15 years old when, in November, 1900, Crowe, supporting the wabbly Callahan, engaged a house on the outskirts of Omaha, four miles from the city proper and situated on a promontory from which every road of egress was visible.

Crowe procured himself a buggy, added a horse, and with his usually sodden partner began haunting the vicinity of the Cudahy house. The conveyance, it appears, was for the two-fold purpose of getting Callahan about the town and transporting Cudahy to the hideout, once he was seized.

The canny Crowe had acquainted himself with the fact that in Nebraska at the time, the only law providing a penalty for kidnaping stipulated that the victim must be under 10 years of age.

On Dec. 18, at 7 p. m., young Eddie Cudahy walked out of his house into the arms of Crowe and Callahan.

Said Crowe, flashing a big, tin star:

"Come on, Magee, we want you for robbery."

This approach was not only to make Eddie believe he was being arrested but to make sure that in the darkness his abductors made no mistake in identity.

"I'm not Magee: I'm Eddie Cudahy," said the victim.

"I don't believe it," said Crowe. "You come along with us, and you'll have a chance to prove it."

There Crowe composed for the benefit of Edward Cudahy, Sr., a masterpiece of ransom demands, setting forth that $25,000 must be paid for the boy's return or his eyes would be burned out with acid. The money, Crowe warned, must be paid the following night. He directed Cudahy to put the gold in a big bag and drive out a certain road until he came to a lantern painted red, white and black. By it he should leave the money.

It next remained to get the demand to Cudahy, Sr. Crowe adopted no half-way measures. He left the kidnap victim in custody of Callahan, unhitched the horse from the buggy and went galloping into the night, the Paul Revere of abductors. He rode right up to the front door of the Cudahy home and threw the message, tied to a stick, on the steps, galloping away.

RANSOM IS PAID

The ransom demand was the first knowledge that Cudahy had that his son had been stolen. All the law enforcement machinery of Omaha was set in motion immediately. No trace of Eddie and the kidnapers was found.

When, late the following day, the police were still without a clue in the case, Mrs. Cudahy prevailed upon her husband to draw $25,000 in gold from the bank (it weighed more than 100 pounds) and embark, as directed, in his buggy to buy Eddie back. He did so, found the lantern and left the gold.

Two hours later, Crowe, disdaining police activities, drove Eddie to within a few blocks of his home and released him. Callahan was too drunk to make the trip.

Crowe and Callahan split the ransom and parted. Suspicion was soon focused on Crowe because he had been seen in town. Eddie identified his picture and led police to the hideout. Callahan was arrested there but Crowe, living up to his name, had flown.

Crowe returned to Chicago and hid for a year. He grew a fine set of whiskers. He went to South Africa to fight in the Boer war for the Dutch. He returned to the United States in 1905 to find rewards totaling $60,000 posted for his arrest.

This grieved him—the thought that somebody might get, for arresting him, more than twice as much as he got for kidnaping Eddie. Posing as an agent of Crowe he went to authorities in Omaha and told them the kidnaper was prepared to surrender if the rewards were withdrawn.

ESCAPES IN BATTLE

After two days of negotiations the suspicions of the alert police were aroused and they decided to arrest this "agent." Four of them went out to seize him, met him on the street and began shooting. They didn't hit him but Crowe whipped out a pistol and wounded one of them.

The kidnaper vanished and was next heard from at Butte, Mont., where, after determining that the reward offer actually had been cancelled, he called upon the police chief and asked to be arrested.

"I'm the fellow that tickled the feet of the golden god," he announced.

"You're daffy," said the chief.

So Crowe was finally arrested. He went to trial in Omaha on February 8, 1906, for the most amazing denouement of an amazingly fantastic case.

He was charged with the larceny of $25,000 from Cudahy. The government had 92 witnesses to prove the charge and there wasn't a question in the world but that Crowe was guilty. But Eddie took the stand and testified he had been well treated by Crowe and the jury, made up of every-day sort of folks who didn't like the Beef Trust, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

CROWE REFORMS

Crowe walked out of court a free man, while a huge crowd cheered him! Police had to clear a path through his admirers.

The verdict was a national scandal, and all that sort of thing, and the rumor was born that young Eddie had received $8000 of the $25,000 paid by his father. It was just a rumor.

The whole sum and substance of Crowe's acquittal was that the general public though any man who could bilk a packer of $25,000 was all right.

Crowe reformed (he says), and it is true that he wrote a book of his own misdeeds warning youth not to go and do likewise, but he has been in the toils as a vagrant since his reformation, and today he is a 63-year-old itinerant apologist for the once great scoundrel he used to be. The role just suits him.

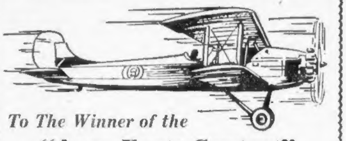
UNIVERSAL CLEANSERS AND DYERS

A FREE AIRPLANE TRIP TO DETROIT AND RETURN



To The Winner of the

"Aero Facts Contest"

Conducted by the

BOSTON AMERICAN

in co-operation with air transport section, Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America

Each day, important "Aero Facts" questions will be asked. On the final day, March 18th, a subject will be given for a 100-word essay. Contestants will be required to keep all questions and answers until the series has been completed and then to send these answers with the essays. The winner will be awarded a free round-trip airplane ride to Detroit, where he will be taken on a 60-mile airplane flight around the airports of Detroit, enjoy a sight-seeing tour of the city, a tour of the Ford automobile plant, and be an escorted guest at the National Aircraft Show to be held April 2nd to 10th.

ANY YOUNG MAN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 15 AND 20 IS ELIGIBLE TO COMPETE

HERE ARE THE RULES:

1. The contest is open to any boy reader of the Boston American between the ages of 15 and 20.
2. Members of the families of employees of the Hearst newspapers in Boston and employees of any air transportation company are ineligible to compete.
3. All 25 questions printed during the thirteen days of the contest must be answered and the complete set forwarded in one mailing to the "Aero Facts" Contest Editor, Boston American, Box 185, Boston, Mass.
4. No answers postmarked after midnight on March 23rd will be considered.
5. The questions have been prepared by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, which retains the correct answers to the first 24 questions. The 25th question will be judged on the merits of the contribution itself.
6. The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce will appoint two judges and the Boston American will appoint the third judge, who shall judge the answers and essays of all contestants and select the winner.
7. The decision of the judges shall in all cases be final and each competitor agrees, as a condition of his entry in the contest, that he will accept such decision without question or appeal.
8. The winner shall only be entitled to the prize trip if, and when, his parents shall have signed a release absolving all parties to the contest, including the airplane carriers, the newspapers and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and the Aircraft Expositions Corporation from all responsibility for accidents, and an adequate policy of accident insurance will be provided to cover the winner on his trip from the time of leaving his home city until his return.
9. In the event of a failure of the parents of the winner to sign satisfactory releases, the winner of the trip shall be the entry next in order, as selected by the judges, who can meet the qualifying conditions.
10. The Boston American reserves the right to alter or amend these rules at any time during the contest.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS, MARCH 7

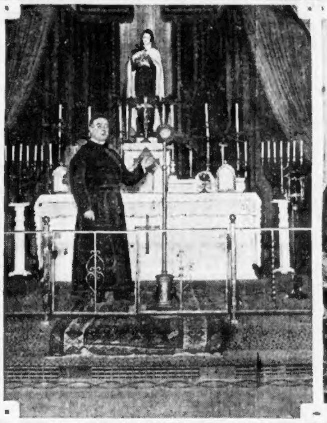
3. If ordinary stamps can be used for an air mail letter, how would you mark the envelope to insure its delivery by air?
4. How much time is saved in sending a letter by air from your home to Detroit?

Keep until essay subject is announced. Then send to "Aero Facts" Contest Editor, Boston American, Box 185, Boston, Mass.

NEXT QUESTIONS, TUESDAY, MARCH 8

FR. COUGHLIN APPEALS TO HEARTS OF LINDBERGH KIDNAPERS

"A CLOSE-UP AT THE MIKE"
Fr. Coughlin, who has become a great power for good by his radio addresses, is here shown as he speaks to waiting millions. His plea to the kidnapers will, no doubt, live in radio history as an epic of the air. (International News photos.)



AS HE SPEAKS BEFORE ALTAR
In this photograph Fr. Coughlin is shown in his Michigan church before the altar, as he preaches his radio sermon into the microphone. He made an especial appeal to the kidnapers to return the Lindbergh baby safely to the parents.

FR. COUGHLIN "ON THE MIKE'S OTHER END
Fr. Coughlin is here shown listening in to another's address on the radio. Like all good speakers he is an excellent listener, too. In his address on the Lindbergh kidnaping he moved his listeners as never before.

"RADIO'S PRIEST" SCORES THIS "KIDNAPING ERA"
Rev. Fr. Charles A. Coughlin, the noted priest whose radio addresses have become one of the biggest features of the air, who has built a shrine in a little Michigan community and won recognition and praise the world over, is here shown in his study.

PATHETIC PLEA URGES THEM TO RETURN STOLEN CHILD

The Catholic Church and its priests were offered as a medium of returning the Lindbergh baby in a radio appeal by the Rev. Charles A. Coughlin, Michigan priest, in a nationwide broadcast.

Fr. Coughlin devoted his usual broadcast to a biting arraignment of conditions which permitted such a crime to be carried out and blamed prohibition for the fact that Col. Lindbergh had been driven to deal with underworld characters in his effort to regain his child.

TEXT OF APPEAL.

Father Coughlin's words were:

"These words, my friends, are not addressed to all of you. They are addressed, I hope, to those who know something about the kidnaping of Charles Lindbergn, Jr. In one way, Mr. Kidnaper, I feel sorry for you. You have committed a crime, and like every other crime it was no sooner committed than your heart repented—repented perhaps for some material, personal reason because you know that certainly the wages of sin is death.

"As a Catholic priest I am interested in your repentence. But more than that I am interested in that you return little Charles Lindbergh to his mother's outstretched arms. May I suggest to you a new way of returning that baby boy?

"In your anxiety and in your nervousness perhaps you are afraid to visit the police and to associate with them. Well, there is no need of that. If you look in your telephone directory, whether it is in Philadelphia or Paterson or Newark or Jersey City or Brooklyn, or wherever you are down there, you will find the name of some Catholic orphanage.

RECALLS MOTHER LOVE.

"Or if you prefer not to take the child to an orphanage, there is some Catholic rectory or priest house—and I might interpose and tell you that you can impose upon that priest a priestly seal of confidence that he dare not break. Make him your debtor! For God's sake think it over!

"Just for a moment remember when you were a little boy. For a moment remember a woman whose breast suckled you and whose arms encircled you, a woman—your mother—who went down into the valley that you might have life. Oh, she loved you more than she loved the entire world and she would have given her life for you, not only at your birth but if it were possible for her to come back from the other world she would lay down her life for you in this moment to relieve you of the mental anguish through which you have passed.

"Oh! There is another mother, too—Anne Lindbergh! Do you realize that you are holding away from her arms, flesh of her flesh, blood of her blood? That you are not injuring the baby heart so much as you are crushing and breaking her heart, as if in a great press, making her bleed the wine of sorrow?

PLEADS FOR ANNE

"My God! If you have any manliness, if you have the least spark of your own childhood, or for your own mother left in your heart, bring the baby to some orphanage, to some priest house. Oh! If I could only do it, I would be glad to go there and take the child from your arms.

"Won't you think these things over? You might call it sentiment, but my dear misguided friend, there is such a thing as sentiment in this world, for religion, for God who made you. There is nothing half so holy in this world as the mother who bore you, and if you wish to call it sentiment by playing upon the heart strings of mother love, call it such. But it is still real. It is still warm, and it is still the greatest argument, and I am sure can find a way into your heart to give it that first movement.

"There are so many things I would like to speak to you about. I would like to tell you, too, that this sacred little babe you are handling with your dirty hands. I would like to tell you that one time you, too, were just as he. One time you too, were curly headed. Little soft hands, so lonely; heart so pure; soul pure as driven snow.

ASKS RETRUN OF FAITH.

"And you put off the things of a boy, and you have grown to manhood, and you have left behind that corpse of your purity and your goodness, and that image that Jesus Christ stamped upon your soul. Like another Judas, you have taken and crucified Him and this woman.

"Aren't you going to think of these things, and don't you believe in immortality? Can't you see the graven hearts that surround you? Have you lost faith in the potency of a bullet? Don't you know there is such a thing as death and judgment and hell? 'Depart from me, your accursed, into the everlasting pains of hell!' Prepare for the devil and his angels, and you can also remember the good thief on the cross suffering the agonies of hell; in this world mocked and mimicked by those with whom he played, and crucified alongside that Cross, he turned his head to Jesus Christ and made an act of faith in Him. 'This day thou shalt be with me in Paradise.'

"You, too, make that act of faith, Mr. Kidnaper, and you, too, will find that though you are upon the cross suffering the agonies of the doomed, this moment you will hear a voice from out of the wilderness, you will hear the voice from Calvary speaking to you, changing your soul to joy. 'This day thou shalt be with me in Paradise.'

"GREATER LOVE" INCITED

"Oh, if you are only listening, I know you will do it. Greater love than this hath no man than that he will lay down his life for his friend, and by this one deed of justice God knows that you will be able to wipe this coarseness of your youth out, the cruel deed of your manhood and the madness that has made of you an outcast from society.

"God bless you, and every one of us tonight. Kneel while I pause. Kneel with me, whether you are in your home or whether you are in a place of public assembly, and together we will recite the Lord's Prayer that He will soften the hearts of those guilty of this hideous crime:

"Our Father Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. Amen."

Commenting on the news that two gangsters had been appointed to act as intermediaries with the kidnapers, the Rev. Fr. Coughlin said he was "shocked" to learn that Col. Lindbergh had been driven to deal with underworld characters in his efforts to regain his child.

"In all the history of civilization there was never such an admission made by any country," he continued. "And that is what prohibition has brought us. It promised it would make our country safe for democracy, but it has made it safe for bootleggers, gangsters and thugs."

Pope Denounces Lindy Kidnaping

Vatican City, March 7 (INS)—Pope Pius XI, through a spokesman, Monsignor Ottaviani, assistant secretary of state, today assailed the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

"The crime," he declared, "is an execrable one. It horrifies everyone, and we hope the child will be returned safely to its parents while the American law and police succeed in punishing the guilty."

London Press Still Giving 1st Place to Lindy Case

London, March 7 (AP)—Attempus to communicate with the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., continued to hold the most prominent place in the news columns of London newspapers today.

Front pages were as thoroughly dedicated to the kidnaping story as they were when the baby was stolen.

The News Chronicle said editorially today that the historian of the future, seeking to record what the people of England were talking and thinking most about in March, 1932, would have to write:

"The real question of the hour was neither politics, business nor sport, but the Lindbergh baby."

There were many sympathetic references to the case in sermons preached from English pulpits yesterday. One of the most notable was at St. George's Church, Southwark, known around the world because Dickens made it the Church of Little Dorrit. The occasion was "Mothering Sunday," an annual gathering of mothers of the parish, with their babies.

The preacher aroused a sympathetic response from 400 mothers by referring to the lost baby as the most interesting news of the day which everyone in the country was following anxiously.

DEFER FEDERAL KIDNAP BILL

Washington, March 7 (AP)—The Senate Judiciary committee today postponed action on a bill to make interstate kidnaping a federal offense punishable by death, believing that to act on it now would endanger safe return of the Lindbergh baby.

For more than an hour the committee discussed the Lindbergh case and pending bill by Senator Patterson (R.), Mo., and concluded that to pass on it now would frighten the kidnapers, add to the agitation and publicity and work against the child's safe return.

Chairman Norris (R.), Neb., also pointed out that any action which might be taken on the gill would not apply to the Lindbergh case anyway as it would not be retroactive.

"The committee," he said, "favors some legislation on the subject but don't think it is opportune to do it now."

BABY NOT FAR, SAYS DOCTOR

By LORENA A. HICKOK

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (AP)—The Hopewell citizenry trying to remain calm in the maelstrom this crossroads hamlet has become, has evolved theories of its own about the Lindbergh kidnaping.

There's Magistrate Edward R. Whitehead, who directs Hopewell's tiny police department. He believes it was done by big-time professionals who demanded a mere $50,000 to throw people off the track.

At first, he says, one might think professionals would ask $1,000,000 for such a child as Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. But times are hard and if the pros could get $50,000 easily and at the same time make the police think amateurs were at work, they would be satisfied.

Dr. George Van Neste, 70-year-old town doctor, whose prestige extends throughout these hills and beyond, says:

"I believe the child is alive and I don't think he is very far away, in fact it might be only a mile or so away."

He said if the tot is not sick and is well treated, it wouldn't make any difference to it that it is held by kidnapers.

KIDNAP MENACE CITED TO 225 NEW CITIZENS

Calling attention to the menace of racketeering and kidnaping, Judge James A. Lowell cited the disappearance of the Lindbergh baby as showing the trend of the times, in an address to 75 women and 175 men obligated as citizens in the Federal building today.

Judge Lowell urged those present to obey the constitution and laws of the land as a step in the direction of checking such practices.

"You are familiar with what's on the minds of the people today, the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby and racketeering," he said. "Such practices are against the laws of our country. You will shortly become citizens. It is your duty to obey the law."

Judge Lowell urged all present to study the records of the different candidates for President to be nominated at the political conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties in the next few months before voting.

Clerk Frank Mason administered the oath to the new citizens. Judge Lowell then went to another session of the naturalization court on the third floor and quizzed a number of applicants for citizenship papers.

Police Experts Here Split Widely on Kidnap Theory

Massachusetts sent two delegates to the conference of police officials at Trenton, N. J., Saturday.

Both had access to the same "inside information," if any, and both returned with exactly opposite theories on the case.

Capt. Bligh of the State police believes the kidnaping was the well-planned work of a professional gang.

THE COSTUME PARTY AT THE NEW RIDING SCHOOL on Saturday afternoon gave us quite a thrill. We felt—as we know all of the spectators who filled the gallery and every seat available did—the atmosphere of lighthearted pleasure that pervaded the ringside. It was an unusual and delightful entertainment.

The costumes and makeup were of the highest perfection, correct to the smallest detail. The characters were well chosen, notably the historical group in which 14 members took part. As we watched the cavalcade, so reminiscent of the past, ride into the arena led by the "Spirit of '76" (portrayed by Mr. Robert Almy, Mr. W. B Long and Mr. Avery Sawyer) we read its message to Americans of today; Paul Revere (in the person of Lieut. Wilkinson) rode in with an air of determination and haste which carried the part to reality; following came Gen. George Washington (Mr. Reginald Bird) riding a magnificent charger with all the dignity of our forefathers and resplendent in the gorgeous uniform of the period. He was preceded by the color bearer (Col. William Rand).

• • •

Other characters in this historical group were Daniel Boone (Jack Bird), Lafayette (Mr. Kingston), Benjamin Franklin (Mr. Lund), while the part of Alexander Hamilton was most excellently played by Miss Frances McElwain. The group was completed by the characters of Nathan Hale and two redcoats (Mr. Charles G. Mixter, Jr., Nelson Aldrich and Miss Patricia Bird).

An Exciting Game

IT WAS A TERRIBLY EXCITING game. The folks in the gallery tore up their programs in their enthusiasm and for a time it looked like a snow scene. The place was packed from ice to roof. Maribel Vinson in a vivid green skating outfit did some acrobatic skating and Jimmy Madden made a few of his famous twirls between the periods. The Harvard band played popular airs and a grand time was had by US.

Harvard Grad to Wed Soon

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, March 7 (US)—Substantiating my recent contention that Metropolitan "eligibles" are going far afield in their search for young women to share their social prestige, wealth and happiness, comes word today that one of Gotham's most popular young clubfellows will at some future date confer his name on a young miss from Pennsylvania.

I refer to Lathrop Stanley Haskins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley Haskins of New York, who has won the coveted "yes" of Barbara Ewing, daughter of the senior Thomas Ewings of Pittsburgh.

Barbara, whose mother, before her marriage, was Mary G. James, comes of an importantly-placed family, however, and she is an outstanding member of the younger smart set in the Smoky City, where she can boast of membership in the Junior League. After studying at Miss Walker's school at Simsbury, Conn., Barbara entered Smith College, from which she received her degree.

As for Lathrop, who bears the name of his mother's family, the latter having been Marian Graves Lathrop, he "prepped" at St. Mark's school in Southborough, Mass., and received his sheepskin from Harvard University with the class of '26, since which time he has been associated with the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

He is a brother of Stanley G. and Thomas Owen Haskins and of Mrs. William S. Hammersley, the onetime Leigh Haskins, whose wedding two years ago to the son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hammersley, of New Bedford, Mass., was one of the more important events of that season. Lathrop is a member of the Spee and Hasty Pudding Clubs of Harvard, and the Racquet and Tennis Club of this city.

GAMBOL WILL AID ORCHESTRA

Benefit Slated for March 30 at Statler

One of the forthcoming interesting events to take place in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler is the Spring Gambol, which is scheduled for Wednesday evening, March 30, and is being anticipated by many who have all ready planned dinners to precede the ball. This is not to be a costume party.

There is a long list of prominent patronesses sponsoring this event which will benefit the People's Symphony Orchestra. On the committee are Mr. Francis H. Cummings, president of the society, Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell and Mrs. Robert Stow Bradley.

On Committee

Other members of the board of trustees interested in working for the dance include Mrs. Henry L. Mason, Mr. Robert Windsor, Jr., Mr. Roland M. Baker and Mr. Richard L. Bowditch. The corporation of the orchestra is made up of Mr. Courtenay Guild, Mrs. Frederick A. Cooke, Mr. Roy R. Gardner, Mr. F. Elliot Cabot, Miss Charlotte R. Smith, Mrs. John W. Bartol, Mr. Frederick S. Converse, Mr. J. J. Phelan, Mr. Thomas H. Finigan, Mr. J. Edward Kurth and Mr. George Gibbs.

Miss Martha Chapin heads a group of girls helping with the plans. Included in this group are the Misses Jean Adams, Peggy Bradley, Marian Clark, Dorothea Dean, Margaretta Erikson, Katherine Johnson, Eleanor Stephenson, Katherine Thayer and Sally White.

Among Sponsors

Among the many sponsors for this dance are several of the younger married set. A few of the patronesses include Mrs. Robert B. Almy, Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Mrs. Robert B. Bowler, Jr., Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Busk, Mrs. Charles Terry Collens, Mrs. John H. Cunningham, Mrs. Augustus F. Doty, Mrs. Clare H. Draper, Mrs. Roger Ernst, Mrs. Marshal Fabyan, Mrs. John G. Flint, Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr., and Mrs. Francis Appleton Harding.

The postponed debutante party for Miss Louise Russell and Miss Junia Mason, given by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Russell of Marlborough st. and Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Mason of Beacon st., will take place April 1. The dance will be given at the Country Club,

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Prattle and Tattle!

It flows in from the East and the West Broadway and Hollywood, Park Avenue and Delancey Street—grist for the chatter mill. Carl Laemmle, Universal potentate, for instance, is about to become a grandpappy again, his dtr., Rosabelle Bergerman, having the bassinet all trimmed for the occasion. Roger Q. Williams, the aviator, endeavoring to unsnarl himself from one marital tangle, will wrap himself up in another, pretty Myra Porter (she used to be something or other at the Algonquin, I believe) being scheduled to become the next Mrs. Williams. From Northampton, Mass., drift two interesting tidbits. Students at Smith College are dropping out at the rate of three a week—depression, of course, and Calvin Coolidge, a leading citizen of the town, sends a box of twenty-five cigars to an acquaintance—no two cigars of the same brand. In other words, the distinguished but thrifty gentleman had carefully saved weeds donated to him. The Carter de Haven, juniors (she was Sue Brighton) have had their baby, a boy, and despite those contrary rumors, George Lowther and "Tony" Johnson of the Social Register set are still Purring and Cooing. In fact, Mrs. Maclay Johnson, the tall and willowy mama of "Tony," is chaperoning the party cruising in Florida on Howard Hughes' yacht and George and the gal are in the party. The real trouble is that George, since graduating from Yale last June, hasn't been able to get a job. Pretty Marion Yurdin, one of the few women sports writers, and Julius Ullman, former all-American football half, are involved in one of the prettiest of the town's romances. Just before he left for Palm Springs, ailing Al Siegel, Bee Palmer's former husband and discoverer of Ethel Merman and Lillian Shade, turned to me and said sadly, "I'd rather die living than live dying." A war with disatrous potentialities—and the baby of an American hero. The baby is kidnaped, and did you notice what the papers did? Relegated the war to second place.

People are getting married, people are getting divorced, people are having babies—it's a merry whirligig. After all these years and all her ups and downs, Belle Livingstone suddenly decides to sail to Paree to rejoin her husband. On the other hand, Lois Wild, a beauty of the local Hollywood night spot, is off to Europe, ostensibly to sever the tie binding her to Leslie Sherriff and perhaps, then, to wed Count Tonda Shubert of Germany, but no relative of Lee and Jake. The song-writing Oscar Levant and his pretty bride, Barbara Smith, after a brief squabble, have kissed and made up, which is always pleasant news. Funny thing about women married to famous men. They rarely thrust themselves into the limelight until they get divorced. The most recent case, for instance, is Grace Tibbett, Lawrence's ex. She's writing a play on "Once in a Lifetime" lines, based on opera, and the hero of all things, will be her divorced hubby. Some things can't be told in print. For example—just why Howard Hughes is burned up at the United Artists' exploitation men for their billboarding of a recent flicker on Broadway. But get me aside and I'll tell it to you personally. Laff? You'll die!

Back in 1918 Maxwell Bodenheim authored a book tagged, "Minna and Myself." Minna was his wife then; the second half of the volume contained a playlet written in collaboration with Ben Hecht. Bodenheim and Hecht have been trying to buy up every copy since for this reason and that—I wonder what they'd forfeit for the copy in Mistah Sobol's possession? Those were pretty tales in the papers, by the way—I mean the story that Ken Murray and Mary Brian were going to wed. It isn't true—they're friends and partners in an act, that's all. The dapper De Merjian, theatrical photographer, got into a brawl trying to act the part of a gentleman and has a banged-up head and face. Joe Fisher, the lad who owns about 34 theaters in China, Japan, India and points East, is ardently wooing the pulchritudinous Mildred Byram, whose name some six months ago was constantly linked with George Gershwin's. Harry Green, the comedian, sails off to Europe tonight, and Broadway is wondering whether the blonde Alva Larsen will sail with him. Carl Laemmle, Junior, comes to Manhattan to see the sights and takes to bed with the grippe, poor kid. Of less importance is the news that Renee Torres, sister of Raquel, is letting her hair come back to its natural dark hues.

Nice fella, of course, this Paddy De Sici—tall, dark-haired, suave and constantly in Peggy Hopkins Joyce's company. A polo player and a millionaire is the whisper—but the truth is he's an extra on the Paramount lot. Erich Von Stroheim, confined to a Hollywood hospital, doesn't know yet that they removed a pound and a half tumor from his body and a smaller one from his head. In the National City Bank, now, they have black blotters. Idea of an executive, who traced several forgeries to traces left on white blotters when inked signatures of checks were applied. Incidentally, and I should have recited this in the paragraph above, the susceptible and ailing young Laemmle's new heart interest is Constance Cummings, Harold Lloyd's leading lady. Boy, oh, boy, don't I ramble on! Frank Hazzard, the tenor at the Hollywood, whose heart thumped every time redheaded Iris Adrian paraded on the floor, has suddenly discovered that Betty Junod disturbs him now. You might say, of course, that Tequilla is a drink to-kill-ya. Peppi de Albrew is tossing a $200,000 suit at H. McGee, claiming the latter punched him, causing a blood clot to form which has paralyzed a nerve in his voice, preventing him from singing.

Broadway is an elastic street. It stretches to Van Cortland Park and to Shanghai, to Boston and to Hoboken—and even to Philadelphia. William Goldman, for instance, general theater manager for Warners in the Quaker City, had been courting Catherine Littlefield, premier ballerina of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Co., for four years. Gambarelli came to town the other week and now Goldman and Gamby are heavy in the throes. The irony is that he's exploiting her dancing school, although his former hottotot, the Littlefield gal, runs a dancing school too. On the other hand, Frank "Red" Dolan, former star reporter on a tab here, was given the ozone at the Fox Studios because they had no story for him to work on and in his place they promoted the girl who worked with him. A couple of architects, Fisher & Nathan, who designed several buildings in East Orange, N. J., are smacked by the depression, and do they throw themselves into the river? No sir. They give up architecting and open a cruller and coffee stand in Columbus Circle and you should see the line in front of the place. Out on the Coast, if you've got to have your "snow" you ask for "So-and-So's Foot Ease." Ethel Leginska, the "disappearing" concert pianist, will conduct an orchestra of 100 women in her own symphony at Carnegie Hall, shortly.

Richard Halliburton, the advertising world traveler and writer, has been heard from at last. From Singapore he writes that he intends to fly to the Himilayas with a super-powered plane that will climb 35,000 feet with him and his pilot in an attempt to fly over Mount Everest. What do you do when you get your copy of the new telephone directory? What does anyone do? Turn immediately to the page where your name should be. That explains why we try to crowd so many names into columns like this. That pretty Peggy Carroll in the Esther Ralston act was attacked by a jealous stew at a party the other nite and had her grand face scratched. Over in New Jersey they're experimenting with silk-lined telephone booths. Nickie Johnson, the Atlantic City sportsman, whose interest in Virginia Biddle seems to have dwindled, or vice versa, is escorting the blonde Millie Convey places these nites. It seems to me this ought to be enough chatter for the day. Incidentally, Peggy Fears (Mrs. A. C. Blumenthal), who turned producer recently, will travel Down Memory Lane here tomorrow.

If everyone who attempted a biography these days would go about the task with the ardor and care Marcia Davenport has displayed in her "Mozart," published by the house of Scribner, better work would be produced. All her life she has been keenly interested in the career of the great composer, and she has brought to her life of him a youthful enthusiasm which is as refreshing as it is contagious. She took two long trips to Europe, following every trail she could find which would lead her to some new glimpse of the man; and she has not burdened her story with clumsy footnotes, which only serve to impede the progress of the reader and spoil his rapid enjoyment.

For this one fact alone I bless her name; but I must praise her, too, for the delicacy and reverence of her approach to one of the greatest composers of the eighteenth century.

She shows him to us first as the "wonder child," playing second fiddle at the age of five in the little Salsburg home, playing it intuitively, correctly, the flame of genius leaping from those tiny hands. But he was to be more than a mere performer on the violin and piano. The gift of creation was to be his; and though he died in penury at the early age of 35, his brief life was charged with drama and conflict and tears; and the record of his achievement is one that every musician envies and venerates.

• • •

The early portion of the book, when the youngster was taken about to play before royalty, receiving gifts for his remarkable recitals, with his kindly father standing proudly by, reads like those first chapters in Romain Rolland's "Jean Christophe." His health was never robust, and once he fell ill after one of these difficult pilgrimages. It is a wonder that such a strenuous life did not rob the world of this potential genius.

He was a strange child, with no tantrums, no stamping of the little foot, which is odd when one considers his temperament. Yet Mrs. Davenport is careful to say in her foreword that she has "not evoked an imarginary Mozart; there is a real one," and she has, as Dr. Johnson said every biographer must, 'eat and drunk and lived in social intercourse with him." And her volume proves the truth of that statement.

His letters are wonderful outpourings; the tragedies that pursued him make sorrowful and bitter reading; and nothing, I think, could be more beautiful than Mrs. Davenport's description, brief and full of tears, of his funeral:

"What of the pitiful funeral in the Stefanskirche? What of the important Baron van Swieten, who came back into their poor world from his great one to arrange for the third-class (pauper's) funeral, for 11 florins, 26 kreutzer, that Constanze paid? What of the straggling little group—Sussmayr, Swieten, Salieri—that gathered in the chapel to hear the corpse blessed, and then, huddling under their umbrellas, to leave it halfway to the burial ground because the weather was too bad to endure? What of the wild rain and sleet that beat down on the cheap board box? And the solitary old ghoul who lowered it into the poor-pit in the Marxer Friedhof? He knew that its contents were no different from the other lumps of dead, unwanted clay.

"But the music is alive!"

The rewards of genius are often pitifully small. About $200 was all he ever received for "Figaro"; about $225 for "Don Giovanni," and about $112 for the great Requiem Mass.

It may be interesting to know that Marcia Davenport is the daughter of Alma Gluck, the singer, and the stepdaughter of Efrem Zimballst. She has written, out of her heart, one of the most touching biographies I have read in some years; and she deserves great credit for never falling into the pitfall of sentimentality.

The public has taken to "boners" as a hungry dog takes to a bone; and the publishers of three previous little books, the Viking Press, have flung another into the bookstores, this time labeled "Prize Boners for 1932." And the end is not yet; for it is stated that a prize of $50 will be awarded to the contributor in this volume who receives the greatest number of votes from readers. The name of the winner will be announced in the next volume.

"Those who regard the Boner as a form of amusement and entertainment are blinding themselves to its truly great significance as a national—nay, universal—panacea . . . Only through the Boner, the glorification of everything inexact and incorrect, can we once again find the calm and security, the fortitude and strength, of abysmal ignorance."

Some of the letters written to the War Risk Bureau in Washington are amusing, such as:

"I received my insurance polish and have since moved my postoffice."

"Please let me know if John has put in an application for a wife and child."

CANDIDATES ASKED ODD, SIMPLE QUESTIONS

By GILBERT SELDES

NEVER A SLACKER when my country's need is great, I have this time actually anticipated the civic duty which the next election will impose, and have drawn up a series of questions for candidates. You will note, if you take the trouble, that few of them have anything to do with finance, economics, or international politics; yet I think that, properly answered, these questions will tell something essential about the candidates and give us, in advance, a clear idea of the kind of man we will have in the White House. In the old army intelligence tests they used to tell you to draw a line through the O in Mississippi if there were more days in a week than there are months in a year, and if not, to take the square root of minus one. My questions are simpler.

GILBERT SELDES

* * *

I should ask a candidate first whether he believes in Santa Claus (a) at Chrismas, (b) at any other time. This is the prime question; everything depends on the answer because, obviously, at certain times it is necessary to have a believer at the helm and at other times not. Secondly, I ask: Was prosperity ever around the corner? Third: Do you think that the American people, left to themselves, will, in the long run, always choose the right way? The French people? The Danes? This section ends with the proposition that "only God can make a tree," and the candidate for honors is expected to prove or disprove it.

* * *

In the next group we discuss more important matters. It is suggested to candidates that they do not limit their answers to the Biblical yea and nay, but give a full account, omitting statistics. The first question is: Was the United States deliberately singled out by Providence to be the greatest country in the world, or is there something unique in the American character, and if so, name this quality. The next: Did the Russians really nationalize women, and if not, why not? Third: Do you consider the French passion for food a moral equivalent of our passion for motoring?

Is there any good reason why Will Rogers should not be President, or is it preferable that 90 per cent of our Congressmen should be lawyers? Would you like to live on a farm? What is your precise feeling about the assertion that nature is wonderful? Is there any virtue in poverty, and if so, what is it? Do you believe that rich men are a danger to the community? Are you of the opinion that bad grammar is the mark of an honest man and that courtesy in human intercourse usually cloaks a scoundrel? What is the most frequent object of your day-dreams?

Do you think that the founding fathers really meant anything when they used the word liberty, and do you think that freedom of speech and of the press can be interpreted today exactly as they were a hundred years ago? Make some comment on the fact that under the Fascist government the Italian trains arrive on time. Imagine that you are Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and in that character comment on the punctuality of the Italian railroads. Name in their order the four men now living who are most certain to be remembered a hundred years from now. (The candidate, in answering the last question, is advised to disregard the fact that the man with the best biographer is most likely to be remembered; he will assume equal biographical talent all around.)

Obviously, the questionnaire is a make-shift; what we need is a laboratory test. By a series of electrical shocks, pin pricks, moments of radio crooning, we could learn how irritable our candidate was.

* * *

I should like to know in each case whether the candidate subscribes to a clipping bureau, and whether he would rather suppress a smutty revue than a dreary, serious indictment of sexual irregularity.

He might also say whether it is nobler in the end to die without the dole than to live in the lap of comfort, and to distinguish between the rugged individualism of the banker who accepts the backing of the government and the ragged individualism of the man who accepts a cup of coffee because no one will give him a job.

The last portion of the examination is really a thesis, which each candidate must prepare. It is in answer to the question: Will prosperity return with a bang?

I would rather have these questions answered than most of those which will be thundered with menacing gestures from platforms and at the microphone during the next six months, but I don't expect that anyone will bother.

TOLD STRANGER ABOUT LINDYS, 'RED' ADMITS

By JAMES J. SMITH

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1931, by Boston Evening American

Hartford, Ct., March 7—Henry "Red" Johnson, sweetheart of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby nurse, was the innocent tool of the child's kidnapers, authorities today said they suspected.

Chief J. F. Grogan, of West Hartford, said that Johnson, who has been turned over to New Jersey police, admitted he had talked with persons he could not name about the plans of th Lindbergh's Hopewell, N. J., house, the comings and goings of the family and his association with the nurse.

The disclosure was made while Johnson was still being questioned in Newark and while Bridgeport police took into custody a man who said he rode with Johnson from New York to Bridgeport on the day after the kidnaping.

The identity of the man being questioned in Bridgeport was not made known.

INNOCENT GO-BETWEEN

Chief Grogan, who was present Friday night and Saturday while Johnson was being questioned following his arrest in West Hartford, said:

"The questioning of Johnson and the checkup that we have been able to make, convince me that he was an innocent go-between for a kidnaping mob.

"I feel, and the opinion is shared by others, that Johnson unkonwingly gave information about the Lindbergh household when he was pumped by members of some gang.

"At least this much is certain: That he did talk to persons not known to him by name but whom, he says, he can identify if he sees them again.

"And he talked about Betty Gow, the comings and goings of the Lindberghs, the plan of the house and other details, not realizing for a moment that he was giving away to criminals or their agents information that helped them do the job."

Chief Grogan said no reason was given Johnson by Betty Gow for her failure to meet Johnson by appointment at 8 p. m. on the night of the kidnaping.

TRYING TO RECALL

He also pointed out that it was the first Tuesday the Lindbergh baby was in the Hopewell house, the Lindberghs being in the custom of spending long weekends with the morrow family in Englewood.

Grogan said Johnson is not under arrest and pictured him wracking his memory in an effort to recall persons he might have talked with, what they asked, where and under what circumstances the talk took place and other details that might help.

County Detective Hickey and Chief Joseph Grogan of West Hartford who took Johnson to New Jersey conferred upon returning with State Atty. Hugh Alcorn, Dr. Henry N. Costello, Hartford medical examiner; Benedict M. Holien, attorney, and Probate Judge Walter Clark. What connection, if any, the latter three had with the case was not made known.

One of the strongest links in Johnson's defensive claim—a link that has not yet been found by the Connecticut authorities—lies in a letter which Johnson wrote to his brother, John, of this city, last Monday night.

It was shown for the first time to an Evening American reporter by John Johnson, who allowed it to be photographed in the hope that it would allay the suspicion with which his brother is regarded by police and public, probably all over the world.

In the letter the young sailor—he is 25—mentions the fact that he planned to drive from Englewood to Hartford and would arrive early Wednesday afternoon—the day following the kidnaping.

He wrote that he would have departed a few days earlier but delayed in order to learn on what date work on the Lamont yacht would be started. He was a member of the crew and was ordered to report for work on March 15.

The letter was written on Monday night the night preceding the kidnaping and was mailed, according to the postmark, in Englewood at 1:30 p. m., the following day.

The trend of the letter would indicate that Johnson was in his usual happy frame of mind, looking forward to a meeting with his brother and his five-year-old niece, Alice.

There was nothing to indicate that he was under a mental strain or contemplating a hurried departure from Englewood.

VISIT EXPECTED

He wrote jokingly that he was coming to his brother's home "whether he liked it or not, as usual."

The letter disproves an early statement made by police that Johnson's visit to his brother's home was entirely unexpected.

John Johnson, bitterly critical of the methods used by the Connecticut officials in handling his brother, pointed out that no inquiries have been made of him as to Henry's movements since his arrival in Hartford up to the time he was taken into custody.

"They have asked me nothing," he said, "although I could have given them many details which would help to prove him innocent of any connection with the kidnaping.

"They have refused to allow me to talk with him. They will not tell me where he is. I have hesitated to retain a lawyer because I felt that such a step would hold him up to more suspicion—that people would think he was trying to cover up something.

"They have treated him like a hardened criminal and he was never in any sort of trouble in his life. He could not possibly have any part in such a crime. It is entirely against his nature. He is fond of children and I think he loves my oldest child more than anything else on earth.

"I believe that if any information about the Lindbergh baby came from him it was obtained without his knowledge. I have an idea that some person, either directly or indirectly connected with the kidnaping, may have talked in a seemingly casual way with my brother about the baby and the Lindbergh home.

KNOWN IN BROOKLYN

"It is more than likely that he unconsciously supplied information that was passed on to the kidnapers. When he arrived at my home Wednesday afternoon I greeted him in the usual manner.

"Then I asked him if he had heard the news about the Lindbergh baby. He said he had read about it on the way up from Englewood and made some remark about not believing it could be true.

"We made other references to the case and then he told me he had called up Betty about nine o'clock on the inght of the kidnaping.

"Henry said: 'I called her to say that I was coming to Hartford. It's funny she didn't say anything about it then. But maybe it happened later than nine o'clock.'

"He has been keeping company with her more than two years and thought a great deal of her. Many times he told me he hoped that he would soon be in a position to ask her to marry him. He had not been working regularly. The only job he had was the one on Mr. Lamont's yacht and that's only in commission from May to October.

"He has often told my wife and I that he never gave a thought to other girls after he met Betty and that she was the only girl in the world for him."

Johnson expressed surprise that Detective Hickey had not questioned him about his brother's action from the time of his arrival here Wednesday up to Friday night when he was taken from the house by West Hartford police.

He said that he could account for every minute of that period and that his brother never left the house or its immediate vicinity during his stay and that a number of witnesses were ready to testify to that effect.

"I have heard that the authorities attach importance to the statement of a gasoline attendant in Rocky Point," said Johnson.

"The man says he saw a man that resembled my brother drive a car similar to his coupe up to the station last Wednesday afternoon and that a woman accompanied him.

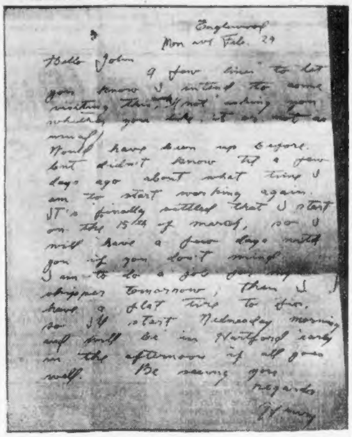
"My brother was at my home all Wednesday afternoon and never left it for a moment. There has also been a great deal made of the milk bottle which the police say was found in his car.

NEVER IN TROUBLE

"Months ago my brother told my wife and I and friends of ours that he was drinking a quart of milk every day. He left Englewood at 8:30 a. m. last Tuesday to drive here. Is it not possible that he bought a quart of milk on the way and drank it?

"Police were quoted as saying that a bundle of clothing was taken out of his car and seized by them. The only thing of that description taken was a blanket which he had carried in the car all winter.

JOHNSON'S 'ALIBI LETTER'



Englewood
Mon nit Feb. 29

Hello John
A few lines to let you know I intend to come visiting this week not asking you whether you like it or not as usual/
Would have been up before but didn't know til a few days ago about what time I am to start working again. It's finally settled that I start on the 15th of march, so I will have a few days with you if you don't mind. I am to do a job for my skipper tomorrow, then I have a flat tire to fix, so I'll start Wednesday morning and will be in Hartford early in the afternoon if all goes well.
Be seeing you
Henry

HUNT FAILS AT MAINE HOME OF JOHNSON KIN

Search for the missing Lindbergh baby shifted to New England again today when the police in Saco, Me., visited the home of Mrs. Howard Pinkham.

Mrs. Pinkham is related by marriage to Henry (Red) Johnson, swetheart of Betty Gow, the Lindburgh nurse, who is still in custody in New Jersey for further questioning concerning the kidnaping.

Chief of Police Charles H. Goodwin reported that he and his officers found two male infants on the place. They were each about the age of the Lindbergh baby. Chief Goodwin said neither resembled the kidnaped child and that he was satisfied from the history furnished by Mrs. Pinkham that neither was Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The hunt by the Saco authorities at midnight was dramatic. It lasted until the wee hours today. Chief Goodwin and Patrolmen Arthur Fournier and John Chase, went to the Pinkham home by motor at top speed as soon as they received the information from New Jersey.

Pres. Hibben of Princeton Reported at Lindy Home

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (INS)—An automobile in which Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University and Mrs. Hibben, were reported to be passengers, came out of the Lindbergh estate today.

Police declined to confirm ordeny the reported identity of the passengers.

Dr. Hibben recently offered his services to his friend, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as an intermediary with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

The Princeton president also was reported to be custodian of the $50,000 ransom sum demanded by the baby-stealers.

Hopewell Churches Pray for Baby

Hopewell, N. J., March 7 (AP)—All the churches here offered prayers yesterday for the return of the Lindbergh baby. Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh did not attend church.

All of the congregations extended sympathy to the stricken parents. One Baptist congregation attempted to hold a prayer service on the Lindbergh estate, but state troopers forbade it to do so.

Stocks Inquiry Delayed

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Opening of the Senate investigation of the stock market was postponed today by Chairman Norbeck of the banking committee until the latter part of the week.

GARNER GIVES ROOSEVELT SETBACK

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

San Francisco, March 7 (US)—Hoover leaders in California are indulging in a lot of shrill whistling approaching the political woods ahead.

They assert the President will be unopposed in the primaries and elected in November.

There is little reason to question the Republican claim that the 48 delegates to their National Convention will be for Hoover, and probably without a contest.

DEMOCRATS STRONG

But electing Hoover is something else again. That will largely turn on the question whether Hoover will hold the 547,000 majority he piled up over Al Smith.

Unless usually dependable signs are wrong, the Democratic party stands a better than even money chance to wipe out the Republican advantage.

Hoover has lost as much ground in his own state as in any other part of the country. Whistling, of course helps, but it will take a lot to get Hoover safely through the woods from present prospects. Still he has the state organization, a perfect propaganda machine most of the corporation support and all of the hardboiled reactionary professionals on his side—Mark Requa, Ray Benjamin, Marshall Hale, John L. McNab, Governor Rolph, Mrs. O. P. Clark, and Louis B. Mayer, all of whom will be on the nominative delegation.

So far as the Californian endorsement is concerned, the delegation looks bullet-proof to Hoover.

THIRD PARTY OUT

In progressive quarters, third party enterprises are casually debated, but lacking in convincing substance. The fight will therefore be a two-handed affair. Never before in the history of the California Democracy have the prospects of winning a presidential election been so promising.

A decided and perhaps a revolutionary shift in political sentiment seems to be working to the top. That is why the Democratic nomination apears to be worth fighting for.

There is ample evidence to show that there will be a fight for the 48 presidential delegates to the nominating convention. The decision will not be won without a vigorous contest, certainly between two contenders and perhaps three.

DEMOCRATS CONFIDENT

Democratic leaders generally believe that almost any candidate named by their party (with the exception of Al Smith) can win.

A few weeks ago Gov. Roosevelt of New York appeared to have the endorsement of California in his pocket. Then along came John Garner. Looming in the offing is Al Smith. He may also be an active contender in the primaries, May 3, though his following is not as yet organized.

Smith has many supporters in California. Few of them believe he can be nominated. But they will vote for him just the same, and probably follow him—except to Roosevelt.

GARNER GAINING

He would lose a lot of friends if his California admirers suspected him of duplicity. They are for him because they believe he is against Roosevelt. At the rate the Garner candidacy is moving both sections of California, Smith and Roosevelt have good reasons for concern.

The hard-headed and picturesque Texan is attracting support from Smith as well as Roosevelt, though a greater percentage from the latter.

McAdoo and Elliot in the South and Henry McPike and J. O. Davis and other influential Democrats in the North are jointly mobilizing an army that will be difficult to stop.

BIG FIGHT AHEAD

This army is not making any attacks on Roosevelt, Smith, Baker, Young, Ritchie, Murray or any other of the men who would like to be nominated for the presidency. It is just a Garner army, taking recruits from all standards.

The Roosevelt forces have not yet recovered from the shock caused by the projection of John Garner into the field. Justus S. Wardell, James D. Meredith and National Committeeman Dockweiler, who almost sold Roosevelt to California Democrats, are putting up a stiff fight for their man. They are finding the going hard. It will probably be even more difficult when the supporters of Garner start the real fighting a couple of weeks hence.

WOMEN SLAIN, DISFIGURED

Balsam Lake, Wis., March 7 (AP)—Efforts to identify two women slain and burned beyond recognition in an automobile near here were being made by the authorities today.

One of the women had been shot through the head and the other's skull crushed by a heavy instrument. Their faces had been disfigured with acid and the clothes of both saturated with gasoline. The auto plates were taken away.

Last Rites for Solon

Swansea, March 7—Funeral services for Rep. Lewis S. Gray of the Fifth Bristol district were held yesterday at Christ Episcopal Church here.

Apostle of Peace

CHINESE START NEW BATTLE

Shanghai, March 7 (AP)—Japanese military officials said tonight 3000 Chinese soldiers near Liuno began an offensive there, forcing the Japanes troops to take "defensive measures."

The long Japanese line was bolstered today by 14,000 more troops, newly arrived from Japan, and Chinese officials said they feared an attack on Nanking, the Chinese capital.

Near their military headquarters the Japanese had established another air field, third in the vicinity, and continue building hangars and placing anti-aircraft guns.

JAPS BEYOND LIMIT

The Japanese line begins at Hwangtu, a few miles west of Nanziang on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, stretches to the northwest into Kating and then runs northward to the Yangtze river near Liuho.

The Japanese admitted that at Hwangtu they were beyond the 12½-mile zone from Shanghai at various points, but said "military necessity" made this overstepping of their objective unavoidable.

China's army showed no disposition toward making peace. On the contrary, it seemed to be hoping to weaken the Japanese by a long wait.

Because of the prospect of an invasion of the capital, Sianfu, seat of Shensi province, was selected as an additional temporary capital with Honanfu (Loyang).

CHINESE SPURN PEACE.

Chinese newspapers said the 19th route army was preparing to launch a counter-attack, hoping to regain the ground lost in the retreat last week.

The 19th army's headquarters now is at Anting, a few miles west of Hwangtu. The Chinese lines ran roughly parallel to the Japanese lines toward the Yangtze.

Japanese authorities declared today their troops would be withdrawn from Shanghai as soon as it was made certain the Chinese army would not again enter the 12½-mile zone.

PLANS CHANGES IN BANK LAWS

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Major changes in the federal banking laws, were proposed today by Chairman Steagall of the House Banking committee, in a bill that included: The following fundamental changes:

No charter would be issued for a national bank without a capital of at least $50,000 and a paid in surplus of 10 per cent of the capital.

Federal Reserve member banks would be permitted to levy a charge for checking service not to exceed one-tenth of one per cent.

Half of the profits of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks after fixed requirements were met, would be returned to member banks.

CURLEY STUMPS FOR ROOSEVELT

Concord, N. H., March 7 (AP)—The eve of New Hampshire's preferential primary, first to be held in any state in the Union, brought to the Granite State two staunch supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, and Jimmy Roosevelt, son of the governor and a Boston insurance man, were scheduled to speak at Manchester tonight. The former's address was to be broadcast and the latter was scheduled to speak in French at several rallies.

At tomorrow's preferential primary the Democrats will name 12 delegates to their national convention eight at large and four from the two congressional districts. The followers of Governor Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith each have a full slate on the ballot.

There is no contest on the Republican ballot, all the candidates favoring the renomination of President Hoover.

BRIAND, FRENCH LEADER, DIES IN PARIS

Paris, March 7 (AP)—Aristide Briand, "Apostle of Peace," died at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in his home on Avenue Klaber here.

It was the end of one of the most active careers in modern French political history. He had been premier of France 12 times and member of 18 cabinets.

The bent, shaggy-haired old statesman—he was 69—had occupied the post of foreign minister in one cabinet after another for so long he had made the office almost his own.

It was from that office that he played so important a part in the making of the Locarno pact that he became for all the world "the man of Locarno."

DEFEATED FOR PRESIDENT

And it was as foreign minister that he conceived the idea of a "United States of Europe," a conception which although it never has taken concrete form still is being considered by Europe's statesmen.

The highest office in the gift of the people was almost within his grasp last May, but some of the policies which he had advocated with all his characteristic enthusiasm had alienated a faction to whom nationalism is gospel.

So, when the electors voted at the Palace of Versailles it was Paul Doumer, of the dignified white beard, who became president of the Republic.

It was a blow, but the gladiator returned to the arena. When Pierre Laval formed the first cabinet under the new president Aristide Briand was back as minister for foreign affairs.

FINAL RETIREMENT

Last January the lion heart weakened and, sick and weary, M. Briand asked his young chief to appoint a new foreign minister.

It soon became apparent, however, that the old master could not go on. Laval asked him to serve as minister of state without portfolio and for a time it looked as though this device would keep M. Briand in the government. Eventually, however, he declined to serve.

That was when he retired to his country place at Cocherel and the nation began to worry in earnest for his health.

He was at Cocherel when the Senate voted Premier Laval out of office, but he had no hand in the reorganization of the cabinet. It was the first battle in many years in which he was not a participant.

Beating Fatal to Ex-Slave War Hero

Putnam, Ct., March 7 (AP)—Thomas L. Taylor, 85, who was born a slave and served as "powder monkey" on the ironclad Monitor in its historic engagement with the Confederate vessel Merrimac, died today. His death was indirectly due to a beating he received in Worcester, Mass., on Christmas night, when two men robbed him of $90.

Taylor is believed to have been the last survivor of the Merrimac-Monitor engagement. He was born in Currituck County, North Carolina.

Oslo Cabinet Quits

Oslo, Norway, March 7 (AP)—All the cabinet ministers who served under the late Premier Kolstad submitted their resignations today to King Haakon, who asked that they remain in office for the time being.

Shoeless Mother of 9 Ordered by Court to Accept Aid

Concord, N. H., Marvh 7.—Mrs. Myrtle Griffeth took off a well-worn pair of overshoes in district court today to show she had no shoes.

She was in court not not sending her children to school. She has nine.

"I haven't got the clothes nor the shoes to send them to school in," she told the court. "And I'd rather starve than ask for charity."

Judge Stevens found her guilty, deferred sentence and instructed her she would have to swallow her pride and accept aid from the city or county.

STIFF FIGHT AS 100 TOWNS VOTE

More than 100 Massachusetts towns, including several Greater towns, including several Greater Boston communities, vote today and tomorrow in what promises to be a series of close fights for town offices.

Record balloting is expected because of intense interest in proposed economies and tax rates.

More than 500 of Hull's 700 voters turned out before noon today for their spirited town election that featured the contest for selectman between Police Chief Frank M. Reynolds and Henry Stevens, commissioner of public safety and fire chief.

Political observers said at noon that statements of voters indicated Reynolds was on the losing end of a 4 to 1 vote. A vote of nearly 100 per cent is expected before the polls close at 8 p. m.

A close contest is expected in Watertown, where Selectman Eric L. Johnson, Edward D. Holland, Selectman Clifford S. Lovell, James H. Sheridan, Edward C. Hall, and Maurice H. O'Connell are candidates for the board of selectmen. There are four candidates for two terms in the school committee and two for the office of chairman of the board of assessors.

Among the towns holding political contests are Watertown, Dedham, Arlington, Belmont, Westwood, Saugus, Lexington, Reading, Winthrop, Lynnfield, Hull, Braintree, Hingham, Cohasset, Wayland, Sudbury, Wakefield, Lincoln and Bedford.

SOUSA'S NECK WAS BROKEN

Baltimore, March 7 (INS)—John Philip Sousa lived the last nine years of his life with a broken neck, it was learned today in Johns Hopkins Hospital, following his sudden death in Reading, Pa.

The discovery, according to hospital authorities, was not made until last year, when the famous bandmaster attended Marburg clinic for treatment. The injury was sustained in 1923, when Sousa was thrown from his horse.

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A snow-hushed capital sheltered today the body of John Philip Sousa, the great march king, whose career as a bandmaster over 40 years led him to the pinacle of international acclaim.

Sousa died in Reading, Pa., early Sunday morning.

Racial Issues Clog Up Honolulu Situation

Following is the fourth in a series of articles prepared for International News Service by its Honolulu staff correspondent, Gilbert Parker, dealing with the background of the coming trial in Honolulu of four Americans charged with the "honor killing" of a native.

By GILBERT PARKER

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Honolulu, March 7—So surprisingly sinister have been the racial issues involved in the celebrated Massie attack case that the actual details of the attack on the wife of an American naval officer and the subsequent "honor killing" of a native have been almost lost from sight.

The case itself revealed a situation on the islands that led to a federal investigation of charges that numerous attack cases, involving white women and half-castes, have followed lax law enforcement.

Attention to the central facts of the situation will be drawn again when Mrs. Granville R. Fortesque, socially prominent Eastern woman; her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two naval enlisted men go on trial charged with the second-degree murder of Joseph Kahahawai, a native, accused with four others of having attacked Mrs. Massie.

STORY OF THE ATTACK

A grim series of facts stands out clearly in the midst of the muddle in which Honolulu has found itself. They are briefly as follows:

On the night of September 12, 1931, Mrs. Massie went for a short walk outside a roadside inn and was kidnaped by five half-castes, taken to a lonely place and attacked. Her jaw was broken in the struggle to defend her honor.

Five men, including Kahahawai, were accused by Mrs. Massie, and placed on trial. On Dec. 6 a jury announced that it was unable to reach a decision after 97 hours of deliberation. The men were released on bail.

The short, swift drama of death that followed focused the attention of the entire United States on the beautiful islands.

On Jan. 8, Kahahawai was shot to death. He had reported to the court bailiff on the morning of that day, according to territorial law, to maintain the $500 bond under which he had been released.

NATIVE KIDNAPED

As he left the judiciary building about 8:30 a. m., he was halted by a youth in the uniform of an enlisted sailor, who presented him with a fictitious warrant.

Kahahawai was told to enter a waiting automobile. In it were two men, one of whom was dressed as a sailor.

The machine sped away. It was followed closely, witnesses said, by a roadster driven by a grey-haired woman. A friend of Kahahawai's who witnessed the abduction sounded the alarm.

A little more than an hour later a police car stopped a sedan on the Scenic Highway, near Diamond Head, a coastline promontory that once was a flaming volcano.

The sedan, driven by Mrs. Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, contained the sheet-wrapped body of Kahahawai. In addition to Mrs. Fortescue, the car's passengers were Lieut. Massie and Edward J. Lord, an enlisted sailor.

ON WAY TO SEA

Shortly after the arrest of the three Americans, police searched the bungalow home of Mrs. Fortescue and in the disorder indicated by furniture there were signs that a struggle had taken place.

At Mrs. Massie's home police found Albert O. Jones, another enlisted sailor, and took him into custody. From him they recovered the "warrant" that was supposed to have been shownto Kahahawai on the courthouse steps.

A reconstruction of the day's drama presupposed that the speeding sedan was bearing the body of Kahahawai to a nearby cliff from which it was to be cast into the sea.

(Editor's Note: The concluding article will discuss the "whispering campaign" against Mrs. Massie.)

HATHAWAY NEW TRIAL APPEAL FLAYS JUDGE

Providence, March 7 (INS)—That Elliott P. Hathaway, convicted slayer of Verna E. Russell, was given a fair trial and that Judge Walsh was "fair and impartial" was the contention of Asst. Atty.-Gen. Fischer today when he appeared before the Supreme Court to oppose Hathaway's plea for a new trial.

George Hurley, chief counsel for the Fall River man, convicted of strangling the student nurse in Tiverton March 23, made an impassioned argument for a new trial on the grounds that the verdict was against the evidence. He attacked the newspapers, he criticized Judge Walsh and he characterized Atty.-Gen. McLyman, chief prosecutor, as "unfair in his argument." Rarely has an attorney in his effort to obtain a new trial for a convicted killer waxed so sharp in his criticism of a trial justice.

LONG DELAY LIKELY

Fischer, defending Judge Walsh, said: "The record shows he conducted a lengthy trial with judicial dignity, and patience and the defendant had no ground or basis for reversal. It is always easy for a disappointed litigant to complain that he did not receive a square deal, that the judge was unfair. We doubt this complaint is asserted in good faith in this case."

Hathaway remains in Providence County jail.

Because of the voluminous briefs submitted by both sides, it is not likely the supreme court will decide the issue of a new trial for two months.

Hurley criticized McLyman for characterizing Hathaway as a "rat" and "drug store cowboy" during the prosecutor's argument to the jury and held that this part of McLyman's argument was prejudicial to the defendant. Hurley said there was no basis for such characterizations.

Fischer countered by saying the time for Hurley to object was at the trial and not now.

STRING OF BEADS

Concerning the theory set up by the state that Hathaway strangled the nurse, Hurley said there was not the slightest evidence to disclose signs of violence.

He declared there were no marks of violence on the girl's body, that her clothing was not torn and as the strongest argument against the theory that Hathaway choked her, he said:

"Around her neck is a little necklace of pearls, hung together by a thread. It was intact. We submit that on impartial analysis, the whole case of the state is answered by this unbroken string of beads, resting peacefully on this girl's neck."

$50,000 BLAZE PERILS TOWN

Hampden, March 7—A general alarm fire destroyed four buildings including the Baptist church and the telephone exchange, and threatened the entire town early today. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

The fire started in a basement in Main st., and spread to the church. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Hazel Burleigh, a telephone operator who was on duty at the exchange in the adjoining building.

BRITISH BLOCK ACTION ON JAPS

By ARNO BOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Geneva, March 7—Great Britain today turned thumbs down on the effort of smaller powers in the assembly to obtain an immediate League of Nations pronouncement against Japan in the Shanghai war.

"The League," said Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, "has launched an inquiry on the spot in which the United States has placed its officials at the disposal of the League's organization for peace in a fraternal manner.

"But we must await full information. The League cannot pronounce yet on the merits of the controversy, but must first decide the methods of procedure."

DEMOCRATS CLASH HERE TOMORROW

THIS IS LIFE

BOSTON EDITOR LOOKS BEHIND CURTAIN ON WORLD NEWS

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

IT IS an old saying in the world of the press that the newspaperman is always going to write a book but that he never writes it. Fiction, particularly, makes great play with that familiar figure, the newspaperman who loafs away his time between days, always talking about the great book he has in his mind. Katherine Brush in her "Young Man of Manhattan" wrote about that sort of youth who did not write his book until pitiful necessity forced him to it. Then, if my memory is not all gone, he wrote a mess of short stories and a novel in jig time and sold them all hot off the griddle. That, in the words of Oscar Wilde, is what fiction means.

PROF. ROGERS

I once worked side by side with a couple of men, both of whom were going to write a book. Well, they did! The name of one of them was Don Marquis. The other was one Sam McCoy, author of a gorgeously unconventional study of John Adams—the real McCoy.

There is a tradition among newspaper men of the old school that a real newspaper man reserves all his power and his ideas for his newspaper and will not stoop to literature. We have two men of that sort in Boston. H. T. Parker, of the Transcript, a man whose knowledge of the modern theater, here and abroad, is absolutely encyclopedic, does not write books. Nor does Philip Hale, critic and compiler of the scholarly program books of the Boston Symphony, which H. L. Mencken once referred to as 'musical Talmudism,' so erudite they are.

• • •

Work of Others Buried

Compared with them the New York newspaper man, who slams his weekly columns into book covers at least once a year, seems very enterprising and opportunistic. But there are doubtless many other examples of scholarship and literary taste buried in the columns of Boston newspapers, besides those of Messrs. Parker and Hale. Mr. John Clair Minot, literary editor of the Herald, has collected "the best stories I know" about animals and birds and college boys and girls. A. J. Philpott, of the Globe, has embalmed in prose one famous reportorial exploit, "The Quest for Dean Bridgman Conner," who died in Mexico a score of years ago, but whom Mrs. Piper, the spiritualist medium, believed to be alive. Mr. Philpott's story of how he proved to his own satisfaction that the whole thing was merely thought transference is a fascinating record.

And then there is the best book ever written for young men leaving college, "A Profane Baccalaureate," by one, Seymour Deming, the pseudonymn of one of our veteran editorial writers.

There are probably many others, of whom I do not know. Oh, yes! and the immortal "Stealthy Steve" of Newton Newkirk, the funniest detective burlesque ever written. Poor Stealthy Steve, the six-eyed sleuth, died years ago. He needs resurrecting.

What I am leading up to in this (always get the gist of your story in the first paragraph lead!) is that another Boston newspaper man has just published an extraordinarily useful and timely book. It is called "Years of Tumult," by James H. Powers, foreign editor of the Boston Globe, published by W. W. Norton & Co., New York.

When I say timely, I mean timely. It was published February 27 and the last item included in it is Japan's attack on Shanghai on January 28, 1932. That is contained in an appendix chapter bringing international affairs absolutely up to date. The main body of the book brings things up to the end of 1932, so that a person desirous of getting a bird's-eye view of world history may understand all the events which were the immediate precurors of the news of the day.

One rather painful impression the book gives me. I am a constant omnivorous reader of newspapers, Boston and New York, but here in Mr. Powers' book I find for the first time many which I had missed in the daily press—presumably because they were not published, or at least not emphasized—and the explanation of many events which the papers I read had not made clear to me.

• • •

Powers' Work Admirable

Our American newspaper policy in regard to international affairs is a peculiar one. We play up all the important and exciting events, but we are inclined to be very careless and sketchy and inconsecutive about the day to day events which explain the crises. There may be a very few papers in the United States which keep you steadily in touch from day to day, so that you can understand the front page events when they come. But not many. Consequently, when Mr. Hoover suddenly proclaims a moratorium, or Japan suddenly invades Manchuria, most of us are in the dark as to the why and wherefore. With foreign news as important as it is today, I should like to see a paper run a daily column which would tell in simple expository language exactly what is happening from day to day, and once a week summing it all up and explaining what it means. Then we might understand.

Mr. Powers' book is admirable. He covers the period from the Treaty of Versailles to the present time. He takes up the events of these ten years or more chapter by chapter, nation by nation. He is concise, compact, thorough, and—so far as I can judge—marvelously impartial. His book is not a disguised plea for anything, neither for participation in the League nor for the policy of traditional isolation. He collects the facts, selects the significant ones, narrates them, pulls them together, explains why things are so, and lets it go at that.

In another recent book, "The United States in World Affairs," (published by Harpers for the Council on Foreign Relations) the author, Walter Lippmann, of the Herald-Tribune, undertakes to prove that the depression has involved the United States inextricably in European financial and political affairs. It is an interesting book as a supplement to Mr. Powers' volume, provided you recognise that it is attempting to prove a thesis. But from Mr. Powers you will get nothing but facts, sifted, winnowed, mapped out and written with fine simplicity and precision.

I never knew before why China's internal affairs are as they are, why Fascism is by no means an unmixed success, why Russia has been steadily climbing down from Communism to the safer level of a more liberal state socialism, why America is changing her foreign policy.

But curiously enough—so quickly does history move—there is no chapter on Japan.

But it's a great book for a busy worker on a daily newspaper to have written, in the best traditions of responsible journalism.

STORM LASHES COAST; DEATH TOLL TWELVE

Coast Guardsmen Lost; Winthrop and Beachmont Inundated

The Winthrop and Beachmont waterfronts and other coast districts were flooded and wrecked today as one of the worst northeast storms in years whipped the high tide into a fury.

Heavy rain fell all along the New England coast, and gales threatened shipping, while further inland many districts were buried deep in a late winter snow.

The storm came whipping up the coast from the southward, and did great damage in the Atlantic City area, where two Coast Guards lost their lives, and three others are missing.

FAMILIES FLEE HOMES

In Winthrop and Revere families were forced to leave cottages and streets were inundated by heavy seas.

Weather officials were confident that the record tides of last year, which caused damage estimated at $2,000,000 on the Massachusetts coast alone, would not be repeated, however.

Heavy surf pounded the Winthrop shore line from Revere to Deer Island and the waves, sometimes 30 feet high, dashed over the sea wall and inundated the area between Cutler and Beacon sts. Four autos were abandoned in the flooded sections.

Almost a dozen Revere families were ordered to leave their flooded cottages as heavy seas surged over the breakwater at Beachmont and Winthrop. Almost 50 cottages at Roughan's Point were on the verge of collapse as they were buffeted by the waves and gales.

All auto traffic along Winthrop Shore Drvie was halted as waves broke over the highway and ran off down side streets.

In spite of the surf, they gathered up many bags of the clams and rushed them into waitingautomobiles.

At Roughan's Point the sea threatened to sweep away many summer cottages, all unoccupied, except that of Frank O'Brien, Mrs. O'Brien and her eight children were prepared to leave on short notice.

WIRES DOWN

Telephone and telegraph lines along the coast were torn down. Heavy damage was also reported to shipping.

Provincetown, Southbridge and other localities were without lights due to fallen poles. Telephone service was disrupted and highway traffic was slow.

Cold weather was predicted to follow the storm and snow was general today throughout Virginia and Washington. Richmond, Norfolk and New York reported the lowest barometer readings on record.

Dog's Bark Saves 2 in Fire at Quincy

"Judy," the pet Boston terrier of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McIntyre of Pequot rd., Quincy, was credited with saving the lives of his master and mistress early today when he warned them of a fire that caused damage of $2000.

The couple were asleep when the fire started from an overheated stovpipe. The dog's barking awakened them.

MIGHTY NEPTUNE REARS UP

DOCTOR BEATEN AND ROBBED

Dr. George W. Kaulbach of Chandler st., South End, was felled by two thugs in the doorway of his father's home on Chandler st., today, and robbed of two bankbooks.

The bankbooks listed deposits of approximately $3000 on the Royal Bank of Canada, Lunenburg, N. S., he reported to the police. The hall was dark and he could not describe his assailants.

State Prison Without an Inmate Doctor

For the first time in many years the State Prison today is without and inmate physician.

SHOWDOWN ON ROOSEVELT AND SMITH IS SEEN

Governor's Backers Seek Slate of 72 Bay State Delegates in "Second Choice" Move

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Smith and Roosevelt forces will clash over the size and makeup of the delegation to the national convention at the meeting of the Democratic State Committee tomorrow noon in the Sheraton hotel.

One of the leaders of the Roosevelt group said today there would either be complete harmony between the Smith and Roosevelt factions by tomorrow night or a wide-open split that would shake the state Democracy.

Apparently the Roosevelt backers are sparring for an agreement under which they will be recognized on the slate with the understanding that they vote for Smith for the first few ballots and then turn to their original choice.

This despite the statement made by Chairman Frank J. Donahue, who holds Smith's power of attorney, that out-and-out Smith men only will be given positions on the official slate.

SLATE OF 36 ALLOWED

The fight at the committee meeting, it is understood, will center around the number of district delegates to be chosen. Under the Massachusetts law, the apportionment of the delegation must be approved by the state committee and the secretary of state notified on or before the third Wednesday in March.

The Democratic national committee allowed the Bay State 36 votes on its congressional representation in the 72d Congress. This apportionment caused confusion here when it was discovered that the G. O. P. apportionment was on the bases of the 73d Congress, in which Massachusetts loses one congreiosnal seat.

To straighten out the tangle that would arise with one party voting in 16 districts and the other in 15, the Democrats agreed to accept the 15 district plan and to make up for the lost district by increasing its number of delegates-at-large from 8 to 12, each with half a vote.

Chairman Shouse notified Donahue that he would undertake to seat the delegation on that basis.

72 DELEGATES PROPOSED

Now the Roosevelt group on the committee is talking of embarrassing Donahue by demanding that district delegates be increased from wo to four, with one half vote each. This would give Massachusetts a delegation of 72 instead of 36, all with one half a vote each.

The argument is being advanced that district delegates should not have a whole vote when Governor Ely, Senator Walsh and other leaders in the delegate-at-large group are restricted to a half a vote each. It is also claimed by the Roosevelt men that the larger slate would permit a fairer representation throughout the state.

In any event, it is apparent that the Roosevelt adherents on the committee are prepared to use these contentions as a lever to force concessions from the Smith forces with complete knowledge of the difficulties that are sure to arise in trying to seat an enlarged delegation at the Chicago convention.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

New Thatcher Colt Detective Mystery

—By— Anthony Abbot

Quarrels of Lola Told to Colt

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At 11:30 on New Years Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Lola tells Colt her life is threatened. He takes up the case and surrounds her apartment with a police guard; but in spite of this Lola is found stricken on the floor of one of the rooms. Colt suspects poison in her death, which follows. Eunice, the maid, gives startling facts to Colt. Christine Quives is found dead. Mrs. Carewe is put on grill by Colt.

NOW READ ON—

"THREE YEARE ago, at an exhibition in Buffalo, they became acquainted," said Mrs. Carewe.

"Had Christine any private income?"

"Oh, yes, she was rather wealthy in her own right—that is to say, I believe she will be—I mean she would have been in two more months."

"She was coming into an inheritance?"

"Yes—of about a million dollars, I believe. There was something about her father having left her money of which she was to come in full possession when she was 23 years old."

Now Colt's line of questions swervel sharply.

"None."

"She had admirers——"

"Yes. But I think she took none of them seriously—that is what she always told me."

"Was this because of a disappointment in love?"

"I know nothing about that. She did not confide in me."

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," resumed Colt, "I want to ask you if you know of any person who would have any reason to wish for the death of Lola or of Christine—or who would benefit from their deaths in any way."

NO LOVE AFFAIRS

"Absolutely none," declared old Mrs. Carewe.

"Who will get Lola's inheritance now?"

The mother shook her head unhappily and supposed she would, but she did not know. And she knew nothing of Christine's affairs.

"Did you ever know Christine to quarrel with anyone?"

"No,—not really," she sighed at last.

"Yes."

"As a matter of fact, didn't she quarrel with you only this afternoon?"

"Oh—that! I suppose Eunice heard. Well—we did have a tiff. But it amounted to nothing. Christine thought Lola was investing some money in a wrong way. But I didn't know anything about it, a remark that seems queer—now! Come to think of it, Christine made I told her not to worroy me about her money; she would have to see Lola about it. And she said something about she would—if Lola lived that long."

"Was that all?"

"Yes. She got to crying and went in her room and shut the door. After a while she came out and apologized and we kissed and made it up."

EYES BRIGHTENED

"Know of any other quarrels that might lead us anywhere?"

"Not a quarrel—I know something, but well—it is so trifling—"

"What is it?" insisted Dougherty. "You must tell us everything."

BAY STATE TO AID ANTI-HOARDING

ELY, YOUNG AND SNYDER JOIN IN APPEAL

Campaign Launched at a Luncheon of the Boston Chamber of Commerce

All citizens and organizations in Massachusetts were called on to join in the drive against hoarding by Frederic S. Snyder, chairman of the Massachusetts division of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, speaking today at the Chamber of Commerce.

"The tide has turned against hoarding," said Mr. Snyder, who is president of the chamber.

The luncheon marked the official opening of the campaign in this state and leaders from all sections were present, representing chambers of commerce and the various local anti-hoarding committees.

Governor Roy A. Young of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and Governor Ely were other speakers.

"BUY OR BANK" SLOGAN

"Buy or bank—don't hoard," is the slogan which Chairman Snyder gave those assisting in the drive.

"Our objective is the removal of one of the great barriers to the restoration of normal business and resultant growth toward normal prosperity," he said.

"Currency is the life blood of the body of business. It is only a part of the machinery of business, but a vital part.

"Banks are compelled to carry a much larger percentage of ready money than they would do in normal times, because of the extraordinary demands made upon them by the public.

BOOMS "BABY BONDS"

"Natural prudence and fear are the timid parents of hoarding but they have no right to longer control action, because the government has now provided a Baby Bond, payable at any time at par upon demand in 60 days, carrying two per cent interest from the moment it is bought until the moment it is cashed in.

"Since the President announced the nation-wide campaign on Feb. 8, $112,000,000 has been returned to circulation. The tide has turned, but our task will not be finished until hoarding has ended."

He announced that Commissioner of Education Payson Smith was evolving a plan by which the school children of the state may co-operate, and said that every industry and every church and society will also be called upon to aid.

START WORKING FOR TRIP

Red-blooded boys of New England!

What is your fondest dream?

How about an airplane trip to Detroit, free of charge, to attend the National Aircraft Exposition?

With all the expenses of the entire trip paid.

The test is simple.

The rules, which should be read carefully and followed closely, are published in another column.

There will be 24 questions to answer, directly and briefly. Two are published today. Two more will be published each day until the contest ends.

Just one boy will be selected from all the readers of the Boston Evening American.

He will go by plane to the National Aircraft Exposition at Detroit, April 2 to 10. He will be taken on a 60-mile special air flight around the city. He will be taken on a sight-seeing tour of Detroit and he will be taken on a tour of the Ford automobile plant.

Distinguished persons from every walk of life have been invited to preview the show. The guests will include leading personages from this country's diplomatic social, industrial, military and naval circles.

There will be a model international air transport line designed as a practical demonstration of equipment used by America's foremost airline operators, operating between five major airports in the vicinity of Detroit.

All this at the same time in one place—Detroit—an opportunity of a lifetime. Don't miss it.

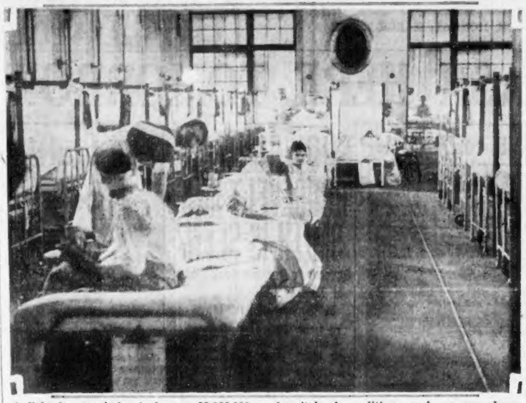
TODAY IS DAY OF CITY HOSPITAL PLEA



A fight for permission to borrow $2,000,000 outside the debt limit for additional accommodations at City Hospital will be waged before the legislative committee on municipal finance today. The $2,000,000 will be used to rid the hospital of conditions such as are shown above. This photo was made in Ward T, where it is so overcrowded it is hard to find a place to walk. The beds and cots are jammed in aisles. (Staff photo.)

WRIT 'LOST' IN STRIKE FIGHT

Hundreds of strikers returned to the picket lines in the garment area today after the failure of Mayor Curley to settle the strike during the week-end.

A flurry of excitement occurred in front of 35 Kneeland st., when a deputy sheriff attempted to serve a subpoena on Philip Kramer, vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

The paper was later found in the street. It called for appearance of Kramer and Jacob Halpern, union business manager, in injunction proceedings of Matthew-Kadesky Co. The company seeks to prevent picketing.

Reports that several cloak manufacturers had settled their differences with the workers indicated that between 200 and 300 may soon return to work. The reports came from union officials.

City Hospital Treating 210 More Than Bed Capacity

Boston City Hospital is caring for 210 more patients than there is proper room for.

This, and many other reasons for additional facilities, were told the legislative committee on municipal affars today in a hearng on legislation to enable the city to borrow $2,000,000 outside the debt limit.

Dr. Henry S. Rowen, acting chairman of the hospital trustees, said 1400 patients were in the buildings that have a normal bed cpaacity of 1190.

"We are doing the best we can under very trying conditions," Dr. Rowen said. "The hospital has a normal bed capacity of 1190, but 1400 patients are now being cared for.

200 ON AISLE COTS

"Present needs call for a large surgical building and one more medical building. Their erection will make it possible for the city to look out for the needs of its people for the next 35 or 40 years.

"More than 200 patients are lying on cots in the aisles of the hospital."

A. B. Casson, legislative counsel for the city; Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, Charles J. Fox, budget commissioner; Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the finance committee; James H. Ritchie, hospital architect, and Timothy Donovan joined Dr. Rowen in his plea.

WHAT GOODWIN THINKS

Goodwin told the committee the needs were apparent and the only question was finances.

"The trustees know whether these improvements are needed; the question comes as to how to pay for them," he said.

"I think Mayor Curley should pass up the construction of streets this year and that the $750,00 called for in his budget be used for the hospital instead. The rest of the $2,000,000 could be borrowed outside the debt limit."

Double Jeopardy Law Frees Two as Drunken Drivers

Two Quincy men, charged with dreunken operation of an automobile, escaped paying the penalty in Quincy court today through a move which caused Judge Albert E. Avery to blink with amazement.

Arthur Keefe of Sea st. and George Underwood of Pawsey st. were charged with drunkenness and operating under the influence of liquor. They were arrested by Officer John Fitzgerald in Hancock st., as they were stepping out of an automobile.

Both men were found guilty of drunkenness and fined $15 each. On the policeman's testimony that Keefe had a driving license, he was found guilty of operating under the influence and fined $50, while Underwood was found not guilty of the same charge.

Nnderwood, who had pleaded not guilty and who had not testified, was then called to the bench by Judge Avery and asked:

"Who was driving the car?"

"I was," Underwood replied promptly.

After a moment's deliberation the court revoked the $50 fine imposed on Keefe, finding him not guilty, and he and Underwood departed arm in arm. Underwood could not be tried again, having been found not guilty.

The trip will be made on the Prince Henry, one of the company's palatial southern liners, which inaugurated the reopening of the old port of St. George's at Bermuda on the first sailing from Boston last Saturday.

COURT HELD IN POLICE PATROL

A patrol wagon arraignment featured Judge John Duff's session in municipal court today when David Piras, 26, of Shawmut ave., was called to answer a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Before the charge was read, Attorney Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Piras, explained to the court that the defendant had been released from City Hospital last Saturday, and had a cast on his leg which prohibited him from moving.

The defendant, at the time, was lying in a patrol wagon in the inner court yard.

Judge Duff ordered the charge to be read, and then instructed Asst.-Clerk James G. Millward to go out and read the charge to the prisoner. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Apology Reinstates Demoted Fireman

An apology to Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn today resulted in the reinstatement of Fire Lieut. Louise A. Salmon, who was demoted to the grade of private for alleged insubordination after writing a letter suggesting how $21,000 could be saved by changes in the fire department.

The letter, written two weeks ago, followed Mayor Manning's request that city employes contribute 10 per cent of their salaries toward unemployment relief.

Salmon now will contribute 10 per cent.

JUDGE QUIZZES LOVERING IN TRUST CASE

Judge Harold P. Williams questioned Frank W. Lovering, director of the Medford Trust Co., for an hour today in Middlesex Superior Court, where Lovering and President Edwin T. McKnight of the closed bank are on trial.

Lovering had finished undergoing cross-examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. William G. Andrew, when Judge Williams fired his queries regarding the loans made on the Greenlay property on Bradlee rd., Medford.

The bank's loans were $90,000 on a first and $10,000 on a second mortgage, and Judge Williams brought out from Lovering that on this basis the bank must have figured the property, with the apartment house completed, was worth $166,000.

DEFENDS LOAN.

"Did not market values of real estate decline between the summer of 1929 and the spring of 1931?" he asked.

"No," replied Lovering.

Q.—When did the depression affect real estate? A.—In the middle of 1931 there was a drop of 20 to 30 per cent.

Q.—You felt that the bank could safely loan as much at the beginning of 1931 as in the summer of 1929? A.—I did.

Q.—Regarding the $90,000 loan—why was the application not fully filled out? A.—It was not by business to fill it out. I believed it was.

Q.—Now, on the $10,000 loan application, nothing is filled in except just the request for the loan. Why? A.—Well, for two reasons, first, it was to go to the commercial department; secondly, we had the necessary information in connection with the first mortgage.

KNOWS LAND VALUES.

Q.—But isn't it true that every application should be fully filled in so as to become a permanent record for the bank? A.—Yes.

Q.—It is important, isn't it? A.—Very important.

Lovering also stated that there was no reason to be guided by the assessors' valuation in estimating the worth of property, except as one element in the situation. He said he knew Medford land values from lifelong residence there and long experience.

Geoffrey Houlder, assistant treasurer of the trust company, a defense witness, told of forming the Cradock Trust in September, 1931, to buy the property at a foreclosure sale. The price was $100,000.

Q.—(By Andrew)—Who formed the Cradock Trust? A.—Eaton & McKnight as counsel.

Q.—How much did you put in? A.—No cash at all. I gave the Medford Trust o. a second mortgage note. The bank permitted the original mortgage loan to ride.

Houlder said it was he who had the original second mortgage put in the savings department. When a state examiner told him it was improper, he had it transferred.

McKNIGHT ON STAND

McKnight then took the witness stand in his own defense and testified that Eaton & McKnight, the Boston law firm, of which he is a member, owned 14,000 of the 30,000 Medford Trust Co. shares at the time the bank closed last October.

He denied ever doing anything to cause a fictitious loan or a loan on inadequate security to be made.

Carley Gets 7 Years for Roxbury Holdups

A seven to ten year sentence in State Prison was meted out today by Judge Cox in Suffolk Superior Court to Francis J. Carley, 26, of Hutchins st., Roxbury, after pleas of guilty had been entered to indictments charging two robberies and possesison of a rovelver.

On December 31 Carley, with two companions, held up and robbed Frank J. Quinn, a taxi driven. Four days later the thio held up Michael Roitman of Tremont st. and robbed him.

This is a real privilege. It is also a pleasure comparable only to the thrill of being back in Boston, a city that has always been exceptionally good to me—and everybody else.

ME AND MY SHADOW

Regarding broadcasting as a business, what growth it has enjoyed . . . Radio has developed as noticeably as I have reduced. . . Believe me, both achievements have come to pass at tremendous expense. . . If I am but a shadow of my former self, then as such I shall try to carry on. There surely must be room for two "Shadows" on the air—eh?. . . All joking aside, which seems advisable after looking over the above few lines, I do want to say something about my boys. . . What would I be without them or what could anybody ever amount to without those around them?. . . Mischa Russell, our violinist, was a concert artist for Florenz Ziegfeld just a short while back. . . Frank Trumbauer, of the saxophone unit, is likewise an accomplished aviator, owning a plane of his own. . . . Charlie Strickfaden, another sax tooter, spends his spare time (if any) gunning in the woods . . . Our vocal trio, The King's Romancers, tip scales at 348 lbs. . . . But wait (or weight), I once topped that total myself. . . Roy Bargy, our piano pride and joy, is also a champ at parcheesi (my spelling and I'll stick to it). . . Goldie, one of the boys who looks a lot like I used to, is our trumpeter . . . Goldie is forever breaking out with jokes. Not a bad trait exactly, if said stories were new now and then. . . His "latest" winds up with one about Britain never being able to pin anything on Mahatma Gandhi, get it?

A FEW FACTS

It is NOT true, that rumor of my receiving offers to join Singers' Midgets . . . Morton Downey and Bing Crosby sang with my orchestra during early days of their broadcasting . . . Both are great boys! . . . I am Clark Cable's landlord by marriage, my wife Margaret Livingstone, owning the apt. house where Clark lives on the West coast . . . Linus Travers at WNAC, certainly looks like big time production executive timber, while John McNamara is an announcer NBC might well watch . . . I hope Mayor Curley gives me a shillaleh . . . Mustn't forget mention of my sponsor, no indeed! Right here I salute those motor car makers, saying "Long May They Sponsor" . . . All of which brings me close to the end of my enjoyable effort. Some exciting experience! . . . I think I'll invite this fellow who writes radio for you every day to come lead my band at The Keith Boston Theater one night this week . . . Poor kids. They can't get away from it.

The lad who plays hookey now will be a runaway.

"Now children turn to page 12 and read about the Gettysburg address. But before you do, kiddies, ask your mammas to give you a penny so you can run down to the hardware store and get a gallon of Soapwater's latest Wawa pills guaranteed to cure colds, rheumatism, overeating, soup stains and ink on your fingers. Then come back and turn to page 12."

When referring to himself the wasted-away Paul Whiteman doesn't say orchestra leadah or directah but "fiddler." A regular guy . . . Mort Downey telephones the missus nightly during his tour. She's Palm Beaching . . . Norm Brokenshire wants to know who has a better right to keep a scrapbook than a prize-fighter. Owitch . . . Whoops, Ann Leaf is going to buy herself a bicycle . . . When Joe Rines won $250 at the races in Miami he wired the news to one of the boys. But not even a post card when he lost it all back a few days later . . . That Real Folks p'gram can't make up its mind. It shifted from NBC to CBS a month ago, and now it's going back to NBC. Apr. 3 is the change date . . . And that Lanny Ross-Don Voohees p'gram which CBS has snaked from NBC, as told (first as always, thankyouu) here Sat., will retain its Thurs. spot until Apr. 7 with Olga Albani doing mike-duty.

Brad and Al take over Salty Sam's WAAB p'gram at 5:30 tomorrow. But 'tis said only temporarily, for a chap named Sid Gary will finally be coming out of the ether on this job . . . A radio preview of "Vincent Ventures" is WBZed at 9:30 this eve.' . . Henry Kalis is still being urged to enter radio, but the Met orch. leader "can't get away".

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

YOUNG LOVE IN EVERY WOMAN'S LIFE

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

EVERY WOMAN should have Young Love in her life, at least once. There is no other love quite like it—so glamorous, so radiant, so [illegible]

That is why, when I heard that Elsie Janis had taken a fling at Young Love, and married a handsome boy, I gave that little girl a Great Big Hand! I was positively joyful!

I knew Elsie [illegible] was [illegible] ing away young [illegible] gress. And I have a very clear idea of how many offers of marriage America's most popular woman has passed up.

Apparently, she agrees with me that "there IS a life, after 40"; and that no woman's heart should curl up like a cat and go to sleep, when the clock strikes 35. There is no deadline for an interesting and fascinating woman, and no age-limit to her charm.

But "two years of perfect happiness"! There's no such thing! Even when your marriage is a glamorous adventure of Young Love, you've got to face the storms and risk the upsettings. They're part of the adventure! Two years of bliss, perhaps—but even a fight would be a blissful relief from "perfect happiness."

Children Can Get Kidney Trouble

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IN THE MIND of the layman kidney disease is an ailment confined to the aged and to persons in middle life. Yet children and even babies may suffer from Bright's disease.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

Christine's Brother Is Watched person—he has been with us for years."

"Why did Christine dislike your Chinaman?"

"He frightened her. She thought he was—impertinent in the way he watched her."

"She was afraid of him?"

"Yes, frankly—she was. But that was foolishness."

Colt brushed aside her comments.

"Now there remains what to me seems a difficult point," resumed Colt. "Lola was found wearing a flannel bath robe. Do you know if it was hers?"

"Did she wear it often?"

[illegible]

With some amusement I observed District Attorney Dougherty [illegible]

"Get everything ready!" ordered Colt crisply. "I am convinced that you boys can help us find what we need to get at the bottom of this baffling business."

Flashing at Colt [illegible] the two [illegible] began to make ready their machine. Meanwhile Colt went to the telephone and asked for long distance. In an incredibly short while he was speaking to Capt. Wagner, head of the Rochester detective department.

"Hello Captain, I need your help in a hurry. I want to find a man named Edgar Quires. He lives on Onondaga avenue—"

[illegible]

"Will you send a man right out there? Ask Quires and his wife if she's there, to go to headquarters with you. Then to call this number from your office. Plaza 3-7561—that's right, and then will you keep an eye on Quires while I break a piece of news to him over the phone. See how he acts. Thanks, captain!"

[illegible]

"Oh, I've read about the Viennese police doing something of the kind. But it all seems very faddistic to me, if you don't mind my saying so. I don't believe you can solve crimes by looking at sweepings under a microscope."

"But, Mr. Dougherty——" I started to protest.

"Any more," insisted the District Attorney, crushing me with a glance, "than I believe you can tell fortunes with tea leaves."

Colt smiled but [illegible] Having set the [illegible] upon their droning [illegible] the Commissioner went to the telephone and called a Morningside number. His conversation was revealing.

"Hello, Professor Luckner. I am sorry to get you out of bed. This is Thatcher Colt. I am engaged on a very mysterious case, and I want to send you some specimens for analysis. Bags of dust—and the clothing of two murdered girls. Could you start in eight away? I can have them there in an hour . . . Thank you."

Choosing a Wife

IT IS [illegible] as well as in fiction [illegible] so to Harvey Melton [illegible] to two girls, and [illegible] under of a sup-[illegible]

[illegible]

HARD TO DECIDE

It ought to go for about fifteen hundred dollars," said his client, "who owned it. There's an acre with it and the banks got a mortgage of nine hundred on it now, why don't you add it in for fifteen hundred. That'll clear me and give me a little to boot and you'll get a [illegible] you'll be proud of after you fix it up.

[illegible]

Why," she cried, "it's hopeless. Look at it all falling apart and no running water. Your friend must be crazy, my dear—why no woman would live in such a [illegible] what's the matter with him? Who is he? Doesn't he know he can get a flat in the town—two or three rooms with all the modern conveniences?"

[illegible]

"Thanks," said Harvey, "I suppose you're right—you see a man likes to get a woman's view on such things."

[illegible] "I'll dream of that house all night," she said as they parted.

EXPERT ADVICE

About a week later he called on [illegible] "I want you to do me a favor," he said. "It's that house again. It's been sold and I want your expert advice about a few [illegible]"

[illegible] "And what's the expert advice?" asked Jane.

The man who's bought the house," said Harvey, "is looking for some one to fix it up—you know, along the lines you suggested, but there's a condition attached—she'll have to agree to live there permanently."

[illegible]

"Of course," she said, with a toss of her head, "you can never account for some men's tastes, but if I were his wife he'd never drag me off to a tumble-down old shack like that."

NO - THE GREATEST

SPEAKING OF WORCESTER did anyone ever inform you that the old Worcester Oval was one of the fastest running tracks in the world? . . . That George Tincler beat Tommy Conneff there the length of the stretch and eased down in 4:1[illegible]? . . . That Tincler had the most beautiful running form of any miler before or since? . . . That Ned Ten Eyck of Worcester, winner of the Diamond Sculls, probably was the greatest single sculler that ever pulled a stroke? . . . That he came of rowing stock on both sides? . . . That his Dad was Jim Ten Eyck and his mother was sister of the [illegible] Ned Hanlon? . . . That John Anderson, the first player to steal second with the base occupied was a Worcester cop? . . . That ball players will tell you Louis Sockalexis, Indian outfielder of Holy Cross and Cleveland, would have been greater than Ty Cobb if he had not given in to the Injun weakness for firewater? . . . That for many years Worcester developed more big league ball players than any city in America? . . . That it was the home of Billy Windle, Maj Taylor, Phil Casey and other champion cyclists . . . That in the days of Pat Hurley it was the "sportiest" town on the globe? . . . That Worcester hasn't been the same since the Great Umpire called Pat "Out."

DID YOU HEAR THAT Harvey Cohn, who is New Hampshire boxing commissioner and Dartmouth freshman track coach, has been ill? . . . That Harvey and Herbie Fenle once were compelled to run a national championship mile three times on same afternoon because of two mistakes by A. A. U. officials? . . . That there's something about the looks of Syvee Shaalien, the rookie pitcher, that makes one think he is going to stick in big league baseball? . . . That Freddie Lane says Shaalien will not stay in baseball unless he changes his name? . . . That with that name Shaalien shouldn't have any difficulty in making the Fordham football team? . . . That oranges in California are selling 5 cents a dozen and ball players are going strong for them? . . . That Jimmy Slattery—you've seen him box—is a candidate for the New York Police Department? . . . That Laddie Lee, former Holy Cross athlete and professional boxer, is a policeman in Medford? . . . That Mike Pecora, the national walking champion and record holder, is a barber? . . . That we almost have reached the bottom of the column and better stop before we fall through?

Johnson [illegible] so long simply because he was not paid off in full until the 24th round.

Johnson Held on Until He Got His Money

[illegible]

It wasn't until the end of the 23rd that I got word that all the money had been paid to me. I told them that I would not do any losing until they paid me off. And I was quite [illegible] rather. I'd have been right there for the 24th if they hadn't paid. But they paid so I got ready to do my stuff.

Jack Let Willard Slap Down His Title

When the 26th began I got off my chair slow-like. Then I moved in close to Willard. He took good aim for my chin—and hit me on the cheek. I went down and Willard was champion.

Yes, sir, I made sure I got all my money before I blew that title, but I made one mistake. I should have made sure that the moving pictures they promised to give me so that I could show them in Europe and make some money on them there were real pictures of the fight.

They gave me a can of films, like they said they would. But they must have made a little mistake—or something. Anyway, when I hauled those pictures out to show them to exhibitors in Europe all I had was a lot of blank film.

Olympics Program Has Altered Since 1896

Lawson Robertson, Olympic games head coach this year, continues this series on the Olympics until after the conclusion of the world [illegible] at Los Angeles this summer. He is a former track "great," and athlete [illegible]. His next article appears in Wednesday's Boston Evening American sports pages.

Yarns From Red Hose

Savannah, Ga., March 7.—Harry Burns, right-hand rookie pitcher from St. Mary's College, Kansas City, very nearly ended his career with the Red Sox in the first week. He crashed into a concrete stand going at full speed. He was knocked out for about five minutes and gashed his forehead. Dr. Sullivan, with the squad, looked for broken ribs but found none and said Burns was very fortunate in escaping serious injury.

John Reder, 23-year-old boy from Fall River, came here to join the pitching staff. But he has been doing so well around first base in the practice work that he might be [illegible] to fight Van Camp and Rothrock for the job.

Reder played goal for the New Bedford Whaler soccer team, which won the Eastern pro championship. He attended Durfee high where he mixed the two odd sports, baseball and soccer.

"It's the best training spot we have had so far," said Bob Quinn, after a few days of looking over the Savannah encampment of the Hub Hose. "The Chamber of Commerce has done everything possible to put the park in first class shape, and they must have bribed the weather man to keep the rain off."

Quinn received a telegram from Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, from the tepee at St. Petersburg, extending sympathy on the death of Morris, and the great personal loss to all the Red Sox.

John Quinn and Phil Troy were to represent the Red Sox at the funeral of Morris but "Big Ed" was laid to rest before the Sox contingent could get to Alabama.

"Shano" Collins is anxious to get his Regular-Yannigan games started and to look over John Dashiell, from the Chattanooga club, who is expected to win an infield post on the 1932 Sox nine.

SCHOOL FIVES IN TITLE PLAY

Fitchburg High basketball team will defend its basketball title in the seventh annual [illegible] tournament against seven other fives when play opens at the Tech [illegible] gymnasium on Thursday. The tourney will continue through Saturday.

Judging from their records Brockton [illegible] looks like the team that will give Fitchburg a battle [illegible] and force the defenders to the limit.

[illegible] New Bedford, Lowell, Haverhill and Lynn English are the other teams entered.

Outside of Fitchburg and Brockton none of the entries seem to have enough strength to grab the title. The eight teams selected by the Tech committee, however, are the best in this section of the State and stiff competition will mark the fight for lesser honors.

Roark, Polo Star, Is Reported Better

Del Monte, Cal., March 7 (AP).—The condition of Capt. C. T. I. "Pat" Roark, noted British international polo player injured in a game here yesterday, was described as satisfactory today at the Del Monte Hotel where he is confined.

His injuries, it was said, were not as serious as at first supposed. Roark's horse fell and rolled on him yesterday during the second period of a game between the Hurricanes and Del Monte Rangers in the finals of the Pacific open polo championship.

Joe [illegible] of Northeastern University will carry the money in the heavyweight group. But he won't have any cinch winning. Two other college boys will give him a severe battle for honors. They are Joe Paders of Brown, and Pete Ruskowski of Holy Cross.

Passing the Puck

-By BILL GRIMES

Before he winds up his hockey career at Harvard, Paul [illegible] will be the outstanding [illegible] tender in the amateur ranks. Although he is playing his first season of varsity hockey, [illegible] handles himself like a veteran and there are any number of goal minders receiving pay for guarding nets, who do not measure up to the Atlanta Ga. boy.

Although Fatty Wood and Capt. Charlie Cunningham are standout players in the college ranks, a forward line composed of three Mike Paddens would be unbeatable. What he lacks in height and weight, Padden offers with his [illegible] and fight and he has an abundance of both.

With all due respect to C[illegible] [illegible] forward line combination [illegible] Noyes, who is a transfer from the University of Minnesota, looked like the best Yale had to offer. On last Saturday night's [illegible] the M[illegible] brothers, George and E[illegible] are deserving of high rating.

The Springfield Indians and the Bronx Tigers came to the rescue of the Bruin Cubs by defeating Philadelphia and New Haven, respectively. As a result of the Tiger and Indian victory the Cubs retained third place in the Can-Am race and with five games to go, the Cubs are four points up on the Arrows.

As they want no part of the Montreal Maroons in a play-off series, Les Canadiens are fighting to win first place in the International Division. The Flying Frenchmen would much prefer to run their chances of reaching the finals in a five game series with Rangers than to risk defending their world's championship in a home and home series with Maroons.

Although the New York Americans have seven games to play only three of them are scheduled for Madison Sq. Garden. The Amerks are listed for two trips to Montreal, where they will play Les Canadiens and also journeys to Detroit and Chicago. And, on the other hand, Maroons with only four games to play, have only one more road game, the Rangers in New York next Sunday night.

Other than that they will engage in daily practice sessions at the Garden the Bruin Cubs will be idle until next Saturday night when they tackle their arch enemies, the Rhode Island Reds. It's a hardship on any club to have a ten day break in its schedule at this stage of the race.

Net Stars to Play in Coast Tourney

Pasadena, Cal., March 7 (INS).—Helen Wills Moody, women's champion tennis player, today had accepted an invitation to participate in a hotel tournament here March 19-20. Ellsworth Vines, men's national amateur champion, also is entered.

ACKNOWLEDGING THE TRUTH

—A STATEMENT BY THE GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY

THE Gillette Safety Razor Company in fairness to its millions of customers feels called upon to make a confession and a statement that are undoubtedly unique in the annals of American business. It is with deep regret and no little embarrassment that we do this in order to tell you frankly what actually happened about a year ago when we introduced a new Gillette razor and blade.

For more than twenty-nine years the Gillette Safety Razor Company has been the acknowledged leader of its industry. Consistent with a long established policy of improving our product whenever ways and means could be found for so doing, we developed a new razor and blade. Soon after this was done, we found to our great disappointment that the public was not as enthusiastic about the new Gillette blade as we had confidently expected it would be.

We learned why. Our equipment had been over-taxed in producing 15,000,000 new razors and many times that number of blades to supply the world market at one time. Quality had been sacrificed without our realizing it. Immediately everything possible was done to bring quality back to the established Gillette standard. More than this, we determined to prevent the possibility of similar trouble occurring in the future. Accordingly we set out to develop or find a better production process, impossible as this seemed of accomplishment at the time. We consulted one authority after another, laid our problem before qualified experts everywhere. Finally we discovered and purchased for our exclusive use and at the cost of millions of dollars a manufacturing process that was amazingly superior to our own.

By this method, modern and automatic, millions of blades can be made at top speed without variation in quality. We incorporated refinements of our own invention and installed the new machinery, throwing out all of our old equipment. Factory procedure was changed from start to finish.

Now we announce today's Gillette blades. The usual superlatives have no place in this sincere statement of ours so we will let the quality of the blades speak for itself.

We have been supplying these blades long enough to be reasonably sure that every dealer in your district now has them. The green Gillette package remains unchanged but the blades are new in every respect, quality, performance, and method of manufacture.

If by any remote chance the Gillette blades you buy do not give unusual shaving comfort, you can be sure a package of old blades has fallen into your hands. In such a case we ask your indulgence. Please return the blades to us (and we will replace them with our latest product) or take advantage of our guarantee as stated below.

You can try today's Gillette blades without risking a cent. If you don't agree they are superior, return the package and your dealer will refund your money. Our reputatic depends upon the pr of these claims. B absolutely certain o quality of these Gi blades, we do not tate to make this ment over our sign

GOOD TONE IS DISPLAYED IN WALL STREET

The start was irregular with a showing of firmness in the rails, while some of the industrials ere slightly reactionary on profit-taking.

PROFIT-TAKING ABSORBED

The early profit-taking was well absorbed and a number of issues were able to show moderate gains by the second period. The food group had special strength.

U. S. Steel was down a point, Drug and Gillette each showed point recessions. Corn Products advanced 2 points. United Fruit gained over 2 points, while Houston Oil, Chicago Yellow Cab and McKeesport showed gains of a point or more.

Homestake Mining soared 7 points and Columbian Carbon was up 1. Losses of 2 points or more were shown for such issues as American Telephone, Atchison and Auburn.

Declines of a point or more were recorded for International Business Machines, Delaware & Hudson, Canadian Pacific and American Tobacco A.

TURN TO BULL SIDE.

Week-end advices by brokers to their clients showed a growing number who were turning to the "bull" side of the market. The list, however, was found to be in an important testing area, where it was turned back twice this year. This better tone of commission house reports was attributed in part to the gains scored last week in the bond market.

Wide interest was shown in government financing projects, incuding the plans to raise $900,000,000 additional revenues for the Treasury Repartment through sale of notes. In addition, the new 2 per cent baby bonds made their bow to the public, and coupled with their presentation was a statement that hoarding, which they are designed to relieve, has definitely waned.

London's stock market continued to advance, on top of its gains of 4 to 9 per cent for listed securities scored the past fortnight. Sterling's further rally to a new high price for the year of $3.52⅞, a gain of 1⅞ cents for cable prices, again revived reports that England might soon determine a stabilization plan for the pound.

The outlook for business in the United States for the next few months is favorable in at least two respects, says the current issue of the Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation.

"First, the fact that Ford will bring out his new model in the near future should help clarify the automobile situation both for the automobile manufacturers and the consumers. The second factor is the arresting effect, if not the stimulating effect, which the Glass-Steagall bill should have on commodity prices in general.

"Two of the unfavorable aspects are the continued disturbance at Shanghai and the situations which are expected to arise in and relative to Europe during the next few months."

STUDEBAKER'S PROFIT SHOWN

The annual report of the Studebaker Corp. and subsidiaries for 1931 shows total net profits of $825,202, as compared with $1,540,202 in 1930, a decrease of 46.4 per cent.

After adjustment for the Pierce-Arrow minority interest and after deducting the preferred dividends paid on the Studebaker preferred stock, there remained $399,555 applicable to Studebaker common stock, or 20 cents per share.

This compares with $527,715, or 27 cents per share earned in 1930. Dividends of $1.20 per share were paid on the common stock, largely out of the earned surplus of previous years.

In the first nine months of 1931 the company's business was fairly profitable, showing net profits, after minority interests, of $2,496,125, or 4.7 per cent on sales as compared with 3.8 per cent in the same period of 1930.

Net sales of the consolidated companies for 1931 totaled $64,406,857, in contrast with $86,083,939 in 1930, a decrease of 25.2 per cent. The number of vehicles sold was 58,202 as against 67,269, a decrease of 13.5 per cent.

Fifty Stocks Sell Higher for Week

New York, March 7—The market value of fifty representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the past week was $11,345,079,013, an increase of $753,301,049, or 7.11 per cent, as compared with the market value of $10,591,777,964 at the close of the preceding week.

At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, these same fifty stocks had a market value of $22,030,392,979, indicating a decrease during the year of $10,685,313,966 or 48.50 per cent.

Pierce-Arrow Co. Operates at Loss

New York, March 7—Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. reports for the year 1931 a net loss of $476,943, as compared with a net profit for 1930 of $1,317,070. Up to September 30 $226,435 net profit was earned, but heavy losses in the fourth quarter more than absorbed the income. Net sales for the 12 months totaled $11,925,657, as compared with $19,016,971 the year previous.

Treasury's Offering Is $900,000,000

Washington, March 7—U. S. Treasury will offer $900,000,000 seven and 12 months certificates for quarterly financing March 15. The seven months issue will total $300,000,000 and yield 3⅛ per cent, the 12 months $600,000,000 and 3¾ per cent. Both will be dated March 15.

Maturities March 15 total $624,000,000 and Treasury has to meet about $35,000,000 interest on public debt, a total of $659,000,000. On this basis the Treasury is increasing the public debt $276,000,000.

The maturing $624,000,000 certificates will be given preferred allotment when tendered for subscription to the new offerings. Treasury has in cash deposits with special depositories approximately $346,000,000. It anticipates running the Government through June 15 with this cash and the $276,000,000 new borrowing.

June maturities now amount to only $324,000,000, and it is believed continued improvement of the bond market will permit a bond issue by the Government then.

Texas Cotton Curb Illegal

Waco, Tex., March 7—Tenth Court of Civil Appeals rules the new Texas cotton acreage reduction law unconstitutional. All the justices concurred in the opinion by Judge Barcus upholding lower court decision that the law in invalid. The case will now go to Texas Supreme Court.

Wheeling Steel Is Resuming

Oil Production Up Slightly

Los Angeles, March 7—For the second consecutive week, California crude oil production averaged slightly less than 500,000 barrels a day at 499,650 the week ended March 5, California Oil World estimates, against 499,250 the preceding week.

Power Subsidiaries to Offer Bonds

New York, March 7—Two offerings of bonds of subsidiaries of Niagara Hudson Power Corporation are expected to be made early this week. Issues are $5,000,000 first and refunding 5 per cent gold bonds Series B of Syracuse Lighting Company, Inc., and $2,000,000 general mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, Series E, of Utica Gas & Electric Company.

Gas Consumers Increase 40 P. C.

New York, March 7—In decade 1921-1931 number of consumers served by gas industry increased by 40 per cent, or from 11,452,000 to 16,000,000, according to survey by American Gas Association. Customers for natural gas increased from 2,615,000 to 5,524,000, gain of 111 per cent in 10 years, while those for manufactured gas rose from 8,837,000 to 10,471,000 in 1931, increase of 19 per cent.

Boston Mutual Business Sets Record in 1931

The officers of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Co. were pleased by the figures they were able to report at the annual meeting on Jan. 27.

Boston Mutual Life fared very well indeed in 1931, for it issued the largest amount of life insurance in that year of any year in its history. The total amount of insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1931, was $71,129,902, a net increase over the previous year of $2,803,610, or 4 per cent, represented by 238,687 policies.

* * *

Its officers were also able to report that policyholders found the service of this company to be prompt and dependable in this trying year.

Altogether it paid them $1,848,449 for one just cause or another, such as death claims, or endowments that had come to maturity, or the benefits due them for disability or double indemnity, or the dividends that their company had earned for them by prudent conduct and wise investment of funds.

These payments of $1,848,449 represented an increase of $331,000 over the payments in 1930.

The dividends to policyholders amounted to $161,533. The policyholders also found that the promise of this company to lend against policies is a dependable source of relief to policyholders in distress, for the company took prompt care of every application of this sort.

* * *

The company closed the year in splendid financial condition. After caring for every reserve requirement that the exacting laws of Massachusetts and the actuaries called for, the company had a net surplus of $527,220 as a protection against every possible contingency.

In fact, if one adds to the surplus the funds held for meeting the dividends that are to become payable during 1932, it had a gross surplus of $704,471.

This was after setting up a special reserve to meet any possible losses from real estate acquired by foreclosure. The comment of the officers that the company's results for 1931 were highly satisfactory appears to be well within the facts.

CURB MARKET IS STEADY

Insull issues continued to trade rather briskly, receiving better support coincident with rumors arrangements were being made to provide for refunding short term indebtedness of some companies in this group. Commonwealth Edison puched up several points during the early trading, although it reacted from the top.

Statistics released by the Exchange showed that the Curb's short interest on February 29 was 63,966 shares compared with 71,006 on February 15 and a high record of 129,542 shares on September 23 last.

Industrials were quiet and somewhat mixed.

"Watchful Waiting" Found in Business

That "marking-time" tactics were prevalent in business during February, reflecting a "watchful waiting" policy on the part of business management until proposed Federal reconstruction measures are disposed of, is evidenced in the monthly survey published today in Credit and Financial Management, official publication of the National Association of Credit Men.

Simms Petroleum Deficit $2,651,221

Simms Petroleum reports for 1931 a deficit of $2,651,221 after all charges, depreciation, depletion, lease abandonment, loss on crude inventory and sale of tank cars and miscellaneaus adjustments. The final deficit for the year, according to President Moore, includes a number of non-recurring charges.

Sales of Hudson Make a 30 P. C. Gain

Detroit, March 7—Sales of Hudson Motor Car Co. for February showed an increase of 30 per cent over January, according to Chester G. Abbott, general sales manager. This increase, Mr. Abbott pointed out, was representative throughout the country with few exceptions.

Wayne county registrations showed the largest increase putting Hudson and Essex in second place, with 340 cars registered in February, against 209 in the 1931 month.

SID'S A CARD

(Drama Page Item—Los Angeles Paper) Sid Grauman, the genial impresario of the Chinese Theater, is a great practical joker. One time he stretched himself out on his bed, after applying a most effective death-pallor make-up. A bottle of tomato catsup sprinkled about judiciously completed the scene. Then he had a friend summon a physician post haste. It did give the doctor, a personal friend of Grauman's, quite a start.

Heh. Heh.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I., writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one 19 and the other 18. Every one of my friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drugstore in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

A nagging backache, with bladder irregularities and a tired, nervous, depressed feeling may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition. Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. Praised for more than 50 years by grateful users the country over. Sold by all druggists.

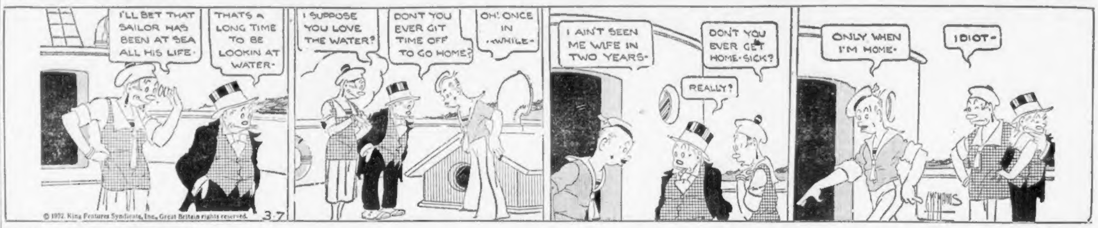
BRINGING UP FATHER

Homesick Only at Home



I'LL BET THAT SAILOR HAS BEEN AT SEA ALL HIS LIFE.
THAT'S A LONG TIME TO BE LOOKIN AT WATER.
I SUPPOSE YOU LOVE THE WATER?
DON'T YOU EVER GIT TIME OFF TO GO HOME?
OH! ONCE IN A WHILE.
I AIN'T SEEN ME WIFE IN TWO YEARS.
DON'T YOU EVER GET HOME-SICK?
REALLY?
ONLY WHEN I'M HOME.

POLITICS

TIERNEY REAPPOINTED

Dr. John P. Tierney, of 416 Marlboro st., Back Bay, was today reappointed acting medical inspector of the city health department by Mayor Curley.

TAKES UP DUTIES

SEEKS CONTRACT

"Tom" Walsh, supervising investigator of the city welfare department, is now negotiating with local radio interests with a view to securing a contract for John McGillivray, also of that department, whose fame as a singer is widespread. John is said to be one of the most talented tenors in Boston.

FASTEST TYPIST

Michael A. Horrigan, of the water department, is the fastest typist in City Hall. He types 130 words a minute without making a single error.

FIRST AIR TRIP

Miss Josephine Schieb, of the city employes credit union, is to have her first airplane ride soon. She plans a trip to New York by air early next month.

SIGH OF RELIEF

Most speakers on bills before legislative committees register pleasure when thanked for their contribution to the discussions by the committee chairman. This expression of thankfulness, if the speakers but knew it, is more often a substitute for a sigh of relief over the ending of the remarks.

ANCIENT ADAGE

"It has been, in all times, the artifice of despotism and superstition to nip liberty, truth, virtue and religion in the bud by cutting off the heads of all who dared to show regard for either. But when a process so summary could not be affected, the next trick was to blast the character of every rising genius who excited their jealousy, by propagating lies and slanders to destroy his influence."

TRUE TODAY

Wendell P. Thore of Squantum, father of the old age pension idea in Massachusetts, says the above quotation in a letter from John Adams to James Waterhouse, is as true today as it was in Adam's day.

DOWD SENDS CARDS

Soracco Has New Ideas for Onyx Club

Fred Soracco has returned as manager of the Onyx Club, 336 Newbury st., after a tour to Florida and Havana to get the latest ideas in night club entertainment.

Fred Soracco

The Onyx has been entirely remodeled and presents a cozy, comfortable place to dine and dance. The new policy eliminates cover charge and features medium priced dinners. Guy Emerson is master of ceremonies and an entirely new cabaret has been secured for the opening tonight.

Legal Notices

TRANSIT DEPARTMENT

Proposals For Electrical Power Equipment, Traffic Tunnel.

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least over one half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for furnishing and delivering electrical power equipment to the Boston and East Boston ventilation buildings of the Traffic Tunnel. The equipment will consist of the following items:
(1) Control and meter boards.
(2) 15 kv. switch gear.
(3) 2,500 v. switch gear.
(4) 480 v. switch gear.
(5) Lighting and service panels.
(6) Motor controllers.
(7) Motor generator sets and d. c. panels.
(8) Storage batteries.
(9) Transformers.
(10) Induction voltage egulators.

Proposals will be received for any or all items. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of 50 per cent of the total bid price. Proposals must be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Proposal for Electrical Power Equipment, Traffic Tunnel," and delivered to the Department or to its secretary before 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, March 30, 1932, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of two thousand (2,000) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. This check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the Department or the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contract for signature. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The sealed duplicate, without check, is to be deposited by the bidder with the City Auditor, Room 20, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening the proposals. Plans, proposals, specifications and forms of contract may be obtained at this office on and after Tuesday, March 8, 1932. A deposit of $25, in cash or by certified check, will be required for a set of plans and two sets of the specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

City of Boston Transit Department,
THOMAS F. SULLIVAN, Chairman.
NATHAN A. HELLER, Commissioner.
ARTHUR B. CORBETT, Commissioner.

Democrats Who Follow In Hoover's Steps Are Headed for His Pitfalls

IF IMITATION is the sincerest of flattery, President Hoover must be deeply gratified by the faithful obeisance of the Democratic tail to the administration kite.

President Hoover employed the long recess of Congress, when he refused to call it to sit in extra session, by formulating a so-called program of economic relief, WITH THE ASTUTE ASSISTANCE OF THE BANKERS.

He submitted that program to Congress on January 3, and found that body utterly unprepared with a program of its own.

Three months have passed since Congress assembled, AND THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS STILL WITHOUT AN ADEQUATE PROGRAM OF ITS OWN.

* * *

THE contribution of the Democratic party to the seven millions of unemployed is the House bill making a niggardly appropriation of $132,500,000 for road construction.

This is a grotesquely inadequate sum. It reveals an "abysmal ignorance" on the part of the Democratic Congress of the magnitude of the economic evils which it seeks to relieve.

Without a well defined party path, the Democrats have planted their feet in Mr. Hoover's footsteps.

By following the President's tortuous windings THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS LIKELY TO TERMINATE IN HIS PITFALLS.

* * *

IF, as Speaker Garner says, President Hoover has led the nation into the greatest panic of all time, how can the Democrats hope to lead the nation out of the panic by following Hoover's fatuous lead?

There would be a little more point to Garner's criticism if the Democrats of the House had a plan of their own and a Democratic one.

A Democratic plan, and the one which will most speed the return of prosperity, would be to give employment to those able and willing to work; and there are over seven millions of them hunting for jobs!

It is unfortunate for the other leaders of the Democratic party that former Governor Smith is the only big Democratic leader who has adopted the five billion dollar loan for public works and for relief of unemployment. And it is unfortunate too that he has abandoned the advocacy for fear of offending his Wall Street friends.

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue would take the country's hoarded money out of hiding in the most effective way that frightened money can be restored to confidence.

* * *

IT would enable the government to put the timid money and the hungry unemployed to work together for the common salvation of all the people.

Why do not the Democrats pass this Democratic measure?

Why does not the party of the people HELP THE PEOPLE?

Why does the Democratic party rest content with the Republican plan of FINANCING THE FINANCIERS?

If both parties are to devote themselves to reimbursing the international bankers who have wasted the people's money in foreign failures for crooked commissions;

If both parties are to dispute for the proud privilege of recouping the reckless speculators and rehabilitating the plundering promoters of worthless securities;

If both parties are to be the accomplices of the swindlers and pillagers and neither party is to give sympathetic consideration to the plight of the plain people who have been robbed of their savings and their jobs;

* * *

THEN the time would seem to be ripe and the occasion urgent for the creation of a third party which shall be a popular party, an American party, an honest party with the public welfare sincerely at heart and the interests of our own American people primarily in mind.

And heavenly day! If all the dissatisfied Republicans and disappointed Democrats and worthy citizens disgusted with both parties would join the new party, there would not be enough votes cast for the old parties to make it worth while to count the ballots.

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, March 7—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes watching workmen install our gallant mirror from a Normandy chateau and stood this way and that before it until my wife inquired: "Enjoying yourself, Good Looking?" Came a basket of jelly Margaret Illington made and a post card from Adolphe and Katherine Menjou in St. Moritz.

So through town and Elsie Janis introduced her new husband, an upstanding fellow, and to Rian James' flat in Horatio street to see his beautiful Llewellyn setter recovering from a strange paralysis. And so brave and affectionate we both wept.

In the evening with Hamish and Aimee McLaurin and my wife to Geraldine Farrar's and she lovelier than ever. All to dinner at the Crillon and after went to Sadie Murray's after-theatre party, where came Leon Errol, the Harry Tierneys, Lois Long, Lewis Gensler and Esmond O'Brien.

* * *

Visiting Hollywood this winter, Claire Boothe Brokaw took H. G. Wells for a spin through the Beverly canyons. It was the British author's first ride in a flivver. After a time, he commented: "A rattling nippy little bit, rather!"

* * *

Harry Evans tells of a Stokowski concert at Carnegie Hall. In the front row a sour-visaged fellow seemed utterly bored by the marvelous music. So much so indeed the conductor became annoyed. Also curious. At the intermission he leaned over the footlights and inquired: "I fear you do not like me?" The gentleman replied indifferently: "O yes, I do." Stokowski persisted: "Perhaps you don't like Beethoven?" He said he did. Finally the leader ventured: "Don't you like my conducting?" He said he did. Then sighed: "I just don't like music."

* * *

A grisly parlor diversion of certain intellectuals is called the Mortuary Sweepstakes and consists of players selecting the most likely celebrity candidate—names such as Aristide Briand and George Bernard Shaw—for the inevitable crossing of the Styx. The auctioneer—called the actuary—inspires bidding by orating on how this candidate and that is tottering toward Charon's boat, quotes the latest reports on blood pressure and other gruesome details. Another selling talk is about how little a candidate is eating lately. When the successful bidder's candidate fades from the earthly picture he or she wins the entire pool. And yet intellectuals boast of an improved civilization.

* * *

That sterling actor, Sidney Blackmer, sends a clipping explaining origin of "ham," as applied to stage folk. Before use of grease paint actors coated their faces with ham fat before applying colors. They were known as "ham fatters." This was shortened to "ham."

* * *

* * *

On Riverside Drive, as dusk is yeasting its magic along that glowering sheer drop of the Palisades, are myriad flashing beacons—like signal lights proclaiming Caesar's fresh triumphs in Gaul. Swift and clean as a falcon, they skip the Hudson in a dazzling panorama against the cyclorama of Jersey's hills. Some are searchlights from hotels, others direct airplanes and ballyhoo the stuffed whale and other catchpenny exhibits for sailors. I commend the parapet on fogless nights to all husbands who have been leaving spoons in the coffee cup or otherwise feel like wandering into the garden to gulp a woolly worm.

* * *

Harry Acton finds all business not going to pot. They are putting on a night shift at the poor-house in his county.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Hush—Hush!

HOW MANY lies does Teacher tell little Willie?

Plenty!—says Dr. John Dewey of Columbia University. Not that Teacher really wants to be a liar—explains the famous educator. But she has no choice in the matter.

WE AMERICAN TAXPAYERS WON'T LET TEACHER TELL THE TRUTH!

SHE MUST LIE OR LOSE HER JOB!

What is Teacher's job? Theoretically it is to tell little Willie the facts about the world in which he lives. Which sounds easy. Actually, it is anything but. For the facts about this modern world are neither pretty nor popular. We are no longer the nice, neighborly folk we were in grandpa's day. Nor can we run our jobs by his copy-book axioms. This twentieth century is both complicated and cussed, and filled with sickening surprises for simple souls.

Now, obviously, if little Willie is to succeed in this highly precarious society, someone should teach him the rules of the game. He should be told how our life is organized—and how it ISN'T organized. He should learn about the incompetence, stupidity, dishonesty, cowardice, hypocrisy and general unhappiness which he will meet in every department of his public or private life. He should be given some sort of a code—moral, economic, and political—by which he may live in the year 1932, and with the sort of human we're turning out this season.

But who's going to perform this service for little Willie? Teacher should—of course. But can you imagine her even starting?

Suppose she should inform them that America is not the smartest nor the friendliest nation on earth nor, in many respects, the most enlightened or honest . . .

Suppose Miss Jones, with her students' interests and her country's future at heart, should loyally arise and do all this—WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO MISS JONES?

You know as well as I do what would happen.

BY SUNDOWN EVERY PARENT IN MISS JONES' SCHOOL DISTRICT WOULD BE DENOUNCING HER AS A "RED" . . . AND BY SUNUP MISS JONES WOULD BE OUTWARD BOUND WITH A NON-STOP TICKET TO NOWHERE.

That's why—says Dr. John Dewey. We, ourselves, won't let 'em.

"It has become 'unpatriotic' to point out or even admit that there are any weak spots in our institutions and habits and to suggest that there are matters in which we might learn from other countries. There has been a heavy pall of 'hush—hush' imposed upon teachers and the easy way for them, the way of inertia, has been to become 'yes' men and women."

A heavy pall of hush—hush—

And what is it buying us?

A nation, consumed in its own darkness—

Well, believe me, stranger—some day we'll HAVE to face them. And what a general colic that will be!

Just Folks

Rest Time

Oh, the longing's in us all
To escape the clamoring throng,
To break through the city wall
To stretch full length on the grass
Letting fame and fortune pass.

There's no one but loves the gleam
Of a patch of summer sky,
And the silver of the stream
With the wild birds winging by,
Where his thoughts can turn away
From the burdens of the day.

There are two worlds round us here
World of men and eager words,
And the other hemisphere
With its woods and streams and birds,
And the frail and lovely things

But there's little joy in play
Lest the daily work be done,
And it's time enough to stray
When the urgent goal is won.
'Tis the task we leave complete

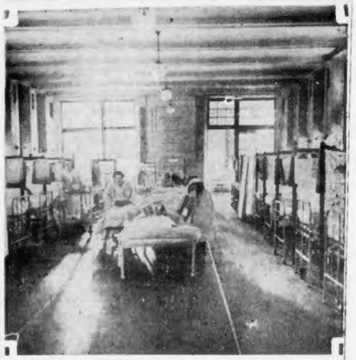
City Hospital Needs Room

Solons Should Grant Mayor's Request



ONE OF THE CROWDED CITY HOSPITAL WARDS

Every bed has its patient. More than 200 men and women, suffering the pain of illness, lie on cots and temporary beds in the aisles of the hospital wards.

We have been through hard times. Resistance to illness has been impaired by anxiety in many cases, by undernourishment in others. Dr. Dowling and his associates have received every patient who has applied for medical or surgical care and the demands in these days have been abnormal.

We all have experience with illness. We know from that experience that quiet and comfort, and not the disorder that accompanies congestion, are medicines themselves.

The first duty of any city is to its ill and unfortunate people who have neither the means nor facilities to provide care for themselves.

In this beneficent work, the city of Boston has been the peer of any community in this country, if not in the world. Let us say to their credit that the people of Boston have never begrudged a penny spent for this humanitarian endeavor.

Mayor Curley is asking the Legislature for authority to borrow $2,000,000 in order that Boston City Hospital may be expanded to meet properly the exacting requirements of the day. The Legislature holds the pursestrings of the city in this matter, a paradox of democracy. In any event, the Legislature can be assured that the Mayor in this matter has the universal support of all the good and kindly people of the city of Boston. His request should be granted, ungrudgingly and without delay.

The Lindbergh Case

The American people are listening for bells to ring and whistles to blow the tidings that the little Lindbergh baby has been found.

The delay causes the spirit to falter and the heart to grow faint.

Let there be no interference with Colonel Lindbergh and the measures which he sees fit to adopt.

Society has failed to protect his home. Let it not, by its belated stirring against crime, too long ignored, complicate and possibly defeat the efforts of a father to recover his stolen baby boy.

Later, in sackcloth and ashes and with grim resolve, let Society address itself to its long neglected duty of ordering its affairs so that crime is not the undisputed master of American life.

Give a Job!

Since the Legion drive started more than 150,000 jobless men and women have been placed in jobs.

The goal of "Work for one million" which the Legion has set can be reached and will be reached if the American people rally to the call for action.

The response to the Legion's appeal already has been widespread.

Job-getting committees are being formed in 8000 cities and towns. These committees will direct the campaign of 10,800 Legion posts and 30,000 local labor unions.

You can help by giving a job whether you employ thousands or are merely a home-owner with a few hours' repair work about your premises. Your aid is needed.
